

Beleaguered CUFA 'cut off' by World Medical Relief

By CARRIE YOUNG
Special to ANP

World Medical Relief Inc. of Detroit (WMR) has cut off pharmaceutical services to Communities United For Action Inc. (CUFA) by order of WMR's director Irene Auberline.

Auberline, founder of the volunteer organization formed 27 years ago, said she had had serious concerns about the "legitimacy" of CUFA's referrals for assistance received by her agency.

"We've been uneasy from the very beginning working with CUFA. Those people who run around there are very unorganized, and extremely illiterate," Mrs. Auberline said. "And after all this bad publicity on CUFA, I just finally said we couldn't trust them anymore to be dealing in drugs."

WMR offers free medications to the needy and elderly in the tri-county area and has been working with CUFA for almost two years.

Mrs. Auberline said her decision to halt services to CUFA last week was, in part, due to the recent rash of adverse publicity about CUFA, in addition to her own dissatisfaction with its operation.

"I had to take action. We have drugs that can be abused easily, and once we give the drugs to CUFA, we have no way to know for sure that they were being delivered to the poor people," Mrs. Auberline said.

Her decision, however, was particularly upsetting to some CUFA officials and board members who on receiving WMR's rejection notice grumbled about the decision. "This is sad, really said, because it is the poor who must suffer because of CUFA's mistakes," said Lillian Bullard, a CUFA board member.

CUFA, an anti-poverty agency servicing 42 out-County communities, has been in existence nearly 10 years, but since its inception has been criticized for its inability to service the poor as intended.

Last year, Associated Newspapers (ANP) conducted a 3-month investigation into the program and fiscal management of CUFA, learning of widespread fraud and abuse of federal, state and local money within that agency.

In January the FBI seized fiscal records at CUFA pertinent to its investigation. As a result, four top administrators were fired, including the recently hired Executive Director Jean Conyers, each accused of conspiring to defraud the agency in a payroll padding scheme.

With the recent firings came threats from CUFA's parent-funding agency, the Community Service Administration (CSA), that CUFA could face a possible shutdown.

That, of course, said CUFA board members, is bothersome. A shutdown, they say, could result in thousands of poor people, who may seek help in utility bill assistance, home weatherization or transportation services, among other CUFA services, being turned away.

However, according to CUFA employees, it appears few may be benefiting from CUFA, regardless of a shutdown. Staffers told ANP that they now are only processing applications for assistance, and that the actual services are not being performed.

CUFA's funding has been held in abeyance, both at the federal CSA level, at the Michigan Department of Labor's Bureau of Community Services (BCS) and locally. BCS is a second-funding source to CUFA, as well as being a monitoring agency for CUFA and 29 other community action agencies across the state.

Few have been benefiting from CUFA, said one staffer, particularly the prescription medicine program.

"We didn't even publicize it," said one neighborhood supervisor. "That would have been stupid, because it would have meant extra work without getting paid for it."

CUFA failed to maintain records of its involvement in the WMR program, at least at two of eight neighborhood service centers ANP visited.

WMR, however, had its records in order.

ANP interviewed 14 recipients of medicines, obtained from a WMR list of 18 names, and learned of their difficulties in receiving assistance from WMR through CUFA.

Most said their wait was unnecessarily long, with one recipient noting she received another's medication rather than her own prescription. The mix-up occurred frequently and concerned "controlled substance" medications.

Two recipients said they never received their medication, however. (Continued on Page A-3)

Council protests hike in equalization factor

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus City Council voted unanimously last week to protect a tentative 6 percent boost in the assessment equalization factor for the city, proposed by the Wayne County Bureau of Taxation. The increase would hike taxes for city residents.

A motion by Councilman Ed Rush called for the city to make a formal protest to the county in April as required by state law.

The 6 percent jump in property assessment would boost taxes for the owner of a $40,000 house by about $70 a year, the councilman said.

Rush hit the assessment hike as a move by Wayne County to artificially inflate property assessments to generate additional income to bail it out of its present financial predicament.

"With the excuse of inflation being held responsible for raising property values, government will never stop inflation because it fills its pockets with more tax dollars under the guise of inflation," he told the audience at the regular council session.

George McEachern, director of the county Bureau of Taxation, told the Roman Friday that the tentative assessment equalization factor is sent out to communities by his office in December. However, aside from Rush, most council members were unaware that assessments in the city were slated to go up.

Treasurer Beverly McAnally said she found out only last Wednesday that the city's equalization factor for local property assessments had been increased by the county.

She explained that in conversation with a member of the city assessor's staff she had been informed that this office was notified of the equalization factor's boost in December.

McAnally said her office had not been told about the factor's increase then by Dave Krause, the city assessor. Krause submitted his resignation as assessor last Wednesday to accept employment with a Livonia firm.

McEachern said the jump in the city's assessment equalization factor was caused by the increase in local residential values, rather than those for commercial and industrial properties.

He added that communities have until the first week in April to submit changes made by their boards of review in local assessments. These changes could alter assessment equalization factors, he said.

After study and analysis of these assessments, the county bureau of taxation will determine the final assessment equalization factor for 43 county communities in the third week in April, McEachern said.

McAnally said that her office not being notified of the increased assessment equalization factor by the assessor points up her contention that the assessor's office should work closely with the treasurer's office.

The treasurer said the City Charter clearly calls for the assessor to work under the treasurer's office. Traditionally the mayor has always appointed the Romulus assessor, and the assessor has reported to him rather than the treasurer.

Sometime in late April, Romulus residents will now if the city has been successful in its protest of the new and larger assessment equalization factor for their property.

Up and away

Catholic schools week got off to a flying start last week in Romulus at St. Aloysius School during its annual great balloon release. Some 200 students participated in the event by attaching messages to each balloon reading: "This is Catholic School Week. If you find my balloon, please let me know." Last year letters were received from as far away as Ohio and Pennsylvania. Other activities of the week included a free spaghetti luncheon for staff and students, class skits and performances, a spelling bee, pep rally and awards assembly. (Photo by Jay Young.)

Poor turnout marks foster care home hearing

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

A Romulus couple Friday said they were "depressed" by the poor turnout of supporters at last Wednesday's council meeting and the apparent inability of the city to stop construction of an adult foster care home in their neighborhood.

Speaking out against the adult foster care facility were George and Nancy Gomes. They objected on grounds that their area — Tobine Road — was zoned residentially, that the project was a money-making venture, and that considerable lack of information had been given area residents on the type of patients to be housed in the adult foster care facility.

"A hundred residents in our area signed a petition, but when the time came for everyone to show up at the council meeting, only about 10 persons did," Mrs. Gomes said.

Her husband said he and his wife were upset over the way in which David Boyd, representing the State Department of Mental Health, had told the audience that nothing could be done by the city or anyone else to stop construction of the adult foster care home.

Gomes, who works in communications at the world headquarters of the Ford Motor Co., explained that the adult foster care home is being sought through Alternative Living Services, under the Southgate Regional Center, which is under the State Department of Mental Health.

Gomes expressed the concern shown by residents of other communities where adult foster care homes have been built — that their communities are almost powerless to stop their operation and have no say in the matter.

"The mayor himself lives on Tobine Road, less than the 1,500 feet away," Gomes said.

The clerk of the community in which an adult foster care home is to be built and operated must under state law notify residents who live within 1,500 feet and the community's board or council of the proposed facility.

Gomes said Mayor William M. Oakley did not express himself one way or the other on the proposed construction of the adult foster care facility on Tobine Road.

He said the first letter to area residents from Romulus Clerk Leonard J. Folmar said that Living Opportunities Inc. was the agency wanting the adult foster care home. However, a second letter from the clerk stated that group had withdrawn from going ahead with the project for financial reasons. Since then, Gomes said, he and his neighbors have been unable to find out who actually bought the land for the home.

He said he did find out that the construction firm for the adult foster care home is R & B Builders. But, he added, there is no record of who purchased the land for the home. He said he has spend more than 30 hours calling state agencies, and city and county officials for information on the home.

His wife, Nancy was angry because she said everyone complains but most do nothing when the time comes to show their concern. Gomes said he and his wife will continue their fight to stop construction of the adult foster care home.

"If we find out that the community doesn't care, then we will most likely move to another area," he said.

Speaking for the State Department of Mental Health, Boyd told the audience that Northville State Hospital will be phased out by 1983 and that its patients are being farmed out in small groups to new adult foster care homes in various communities.

Gomes said one of the biggest complaints of he and his neighbors are the type of patients who will be permitted to live in the adult foster care homes by the state.

He said guidelines set out in a Department of Mental Health brochure allows patients of adult foster care homes to be physically handicapped persons, those blind or deaf, epileptics, those with debilitating afflictions or lacking in self-help skills (taking care of personal needs), and those whose behavior is characterized as "disruptive."

Gomes claimed that the latter category ranges from the psychotic to the near insane person.

Although Gomes said Boyd denied the fact, he (Gomes) said that in his telephone talks with staff members of the Department of Mental Health he had been told of an agreement made between that department and the State Department of Corrections, which operates the state's prison system.

He claimed the agreement would allow prospective parolees to be housed in the adult foster care home-type of facility.

Gomes also said the state guidelines stated that adult foster care homes should be built at least a quarter of a mile from areas traversed by railroads or areas populated by industries.

"But, their proposed location on Tobine Road is about 800 feet from the C & O tracks," he contended. He said trains on that line "highball" through the area at high speeds.

Sitting in the audience was Van Buren Township Supervisor Pat Cullin. Several similar adult foster care homes have been built in that township, some over the objections of nearby residents. To date, however, no trouble has been experienced there since adult foster care homes have become a part of that community.

Gomes said Boyd originally had told him owners of the adult foster care homes were paid $51 per day for each of at least six patients in each location, with a matching sum also paid by the federal government.

But, Wednesday night, Gomes said Boyd said the total money paid to owners of the homes was $51 per day for each patient. He asserted the yearly total of $111,690 for the care of six patients is a lucrative business enterprise.

Added to this, he said, is the fact that adult foster care homes can house up to as many as 12 patients and that the pay received for each patient can go as high as $70 per day.

"Those persons putting in these adult foster care homes could pay for them in a couple of years. From then on, it's clear profit," he said.

In addition to Gomes and his wife, a neighbor, Loretta Collier, also criticized the location of the proposed adult foster care home.

Another speaker, Clyde Miller, who previously had applied for operation of an adult foster care home in Romulus, supported their becoming a part of the community.

Miller advocated the right of patients living in adult foster care homes to live with decency and dignity.

Troubled CUFA loses WMR aid

the majority eventually were satisfied, according to ANP interviews.

"It's strange," said Mrs. Auberline, "that CUFA wouldn't advertise this service. It was in the best position to help these people, but it didn't."

Only 18 people were on WMR's "active user list" who had sought help from CUFA.

"It's really a disgrace," she said. Disgrace or not, there are some who don't want to give up on CUFA and believe CUFA is still worth salvaging.

"CUFA is worth saving for the poor people. But people must understand that it is not for the administrators, the staff people and workers' relatives that CUFA should be saved... but for the people," Mrs. Bullard insisted.

Or is it? It appears that some disgruntled CUFA employees, unnerved with the possible demise of CUFA, are attempting to organize a union in an effort to boost employees' morale, they claim, and to strengthen job security.

Although, spearheaders of the movement refused to disclose their identity, ANP learned of their success in gathering 30 percent of the employees signatures favoring a union, which qualifies them for an audience Feb. 22, before the State Labor Relations Commission.

"You know we're just like the poor people," said one of the organizers. "We have to suffer because of CUFA having a hell of a bad history."

Employees also said they insist on being kept abreast of CUFA's "true" status.

"If you heard all the rumors we have, you'd be scared too," one employee said.

They said rumors are circulating that CUFA is behind in its rent, utility bill payments and insurance and has let other bills mount up since last April.

Those rumors were confirmed by administrators last week, with those in command scrambling to avoid utility shutoffs and such.

Rumors also have touched on employee layoffs, and were confirmed last week by CUFA administrators, who admitted three employees have been laid off, with more tentatively scheduled.

One laid-off employee, Earselene Woodfolk, who supervised the now defunct CUFA-Inkster Ship-Shape Homechore Program, noted that because of the FBI's seizure of fiscal information, her local Michigan unemployment office said it is unable to compute her compensation.

"I'm not too optimistic about anything for CUFA... unions or anything. By the time they do anything we'll all be laid off, and the doors probably will be closed," Mrs. Woodfolk said.

Oakley balks at accepting contract

Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley last week told the City Council that he could not recommend ratification of a new contract with Wayne County for police services until he receives proper documentation of how much the city now is in arrears for past services.

Oakley said a letter from John Godre, assistant corporation counsel for Wayne County, stated that police protection provided to the city would be terminated March 9 unless the city pay all past obligations to the county and enter into a new contract.

The city and county have been wrangling for several months over a bill for past police enforcement services that the County Board of Auditors claims is about $1 million.

Recently, the County Board of Commissioners voted to put Romulus on a deadline that would terminate police protection, if the city gets two months behind in its payments.

In his written report to council,

Oakley said: "As you know the signing of this contract has been a matter of utmost concern to me during my entire tenure in office."

"Although I have engaged in several meetings with various representatives of the county over the past year, final negotiations have been awaiting the results of the independent audit which the county promised some time ago."

The mayor told council he had written to Godre, asking him to meet on Feb. 21 at Romulus City Hall with the city attorney for a "negotiation session".

In his letter to Godre, Oakley said that if the county attempted to terminate its contract for police services by sheriff's deputies and detectives, he suggested that terms of the old contract be followed.

The mayor reminded Godre that the county had promised to have an independent audit made of the city's account with the county for police services, but that to this date it had not been done.

Police arrest three juveniles in Feb. 3 restaurant holdup

Police arrested three juveniles Feb. 10 and charged them as suspects in the armed robbery Feb. 3 of Piero's Restaurant, 13175 Middlebelt Road, in which $3,000 in cash was taken.

Released were juveniles aged 14, 15 and 16, pending a petition for trial in juvenile court, said Investigator John Lewis of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department Youth Bureau.

A tip, provided by a private citizens, led Lewis and his fellow officer, Det. Alex Robinson, to the three juveniles who live in Taylor. The oldest later was found to be an employee of Piero's, Lewis said.

Lewis said the 15-year-old youth allegedly held a shotgun on patrons and Loyd Bolin, the manager. About $3,000 was taken from the cash register at gunpoint about 6:40 a.m. All wore ski masks, he said.

After getting the keys to Bolin's car, they locked the manager and 12 customers in the cooler and fled in his car, the officer said. The car was recovered in Taylor the next day.

Lewis said the 14- and 15-year-old youths have been charged with armed robbery and receiving and concealing stolen property, while the 16-year-old was charged with receiving and concealing stolen property.

He explained that the oldest juvenile was an employee of the restaurant, but was not present at the time of the robbery. Police investigation disclosed that the two juveniles gained entry through a rear door of the restaurant which had been left open.

Following their arrest, all three juveniles reportedly confessed to the crime and returned a total of $593 from the $3,000 taken, Lewis said. During questioning of the suspects, it was revealed that the 16-year-old employee was given $240 by the other youths after the robbery.

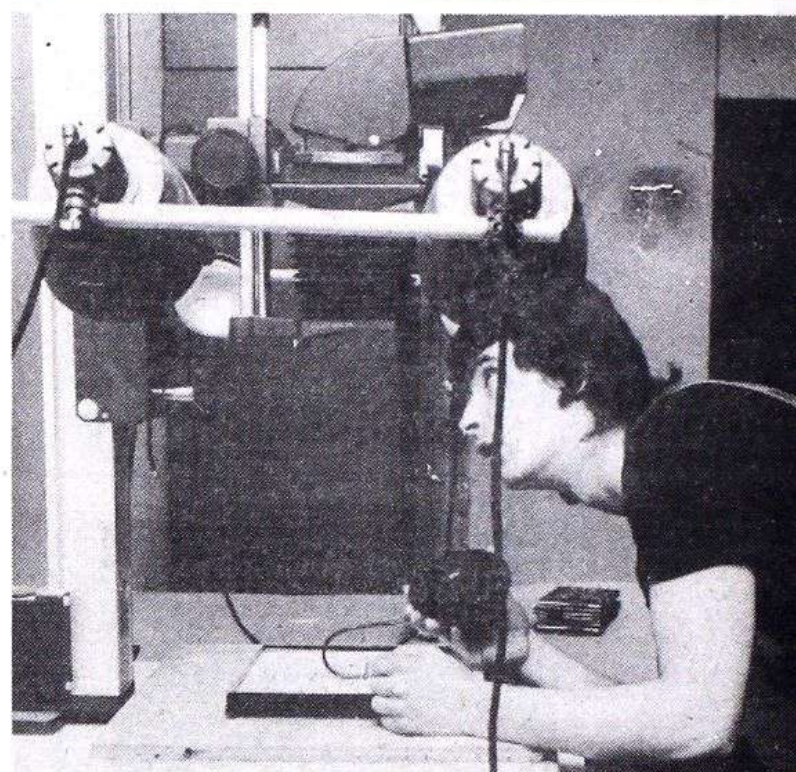

Lewis said Taylor police arrested one youth, and the other two came in voluntarily to his office.

Voc ed students 'show off' skills

Sophomores Jerry Sirhan and Charley Pecsenye want to pursue careers in the field of welding.

Seniors Brian Boc and Dave Spitz are considering jobs in photography after they graduate.

When she joins the U.S. Air Force in September, senior Cathy Bittenbender, who has taken photography-related courses since the seventh grade, wants to use her photo lab experience in the service.

One thing seems to be true of most of the 1,022 students enrolled in the 30 courses in Romulus High School Vocational Education Programs. They were introduced to the subject at an early age in school — and they like it.

Job security and rate of pay also rank high.

These are three of the main conclusions drawn from a tour of the local high school facilities Thursday during Vocational Education Week.

Business people and members of the community were given a thorough, first-hand look at the facilities at Romulus High School, which has one of the largest vocational-career programs in the state.

Several groups of people were shown all the opportunities available to graduates who want to pursue a vocation or career instead of continuing their education in college.

And there are many. Most of the students interviewed in class during Thursday's tour said they were introduced to their particular occupational choice early in their schooling. They liked it, and decided to make a career in many cases.

Many students, of course, are learning about various occupations and have not yet made a decision about which vocation they want to pursue. Studies have shown that many juniors in college have not yet decided what they want to do in life.

So, the indecision on the part of high school students is not unusual. But the well-equipped facilities at Romulus High School and wide-range of vocations, is certainly helping students to decide what they might want to do when they graduate.

At Romulus High School there is a Career Opportunities Resource Center (CORC), funded through CETA Title III federal money, that provides students with information on a multitude of possible careers. Filmstrips, cassettes, the MOIS computer terminal, and Microfiche also are available to explore careers.

Al Sheffield, director of Career and Vocational Education, is in charge of Romulus High School's state-acclaimed program.

"We are very pleased and proud to open our facilities and share what we're doing with the public,"

Sheffield said. "Most people probably are not aware of the scope of our programs and the vast range they cover."

He expressed his satisfaction and appreciation for members of the business world and other members of the community for touring the facilities.

"State and federal funds have made all of it possible and 78 percent of our students are in the vocational education program."

Sheffield said, "that standard of excellence of our program is recognized throughout the state."

In addition to a large vocational and career program, RHS also helps students, ages 16-21, to be placed in suitable jobs. Alice Fugedi, job placement coordinator, and Pat Gresock, placement specialist, strive to bring together the right employer with the job-seeking student.

The five-fold thrust of CORC includes:

— Career counseling, which tests a student's interests and self-awareness and assists in choosing the correct occupation

— Career exploration, which gives extensive information on various jobs and on colleges and training programs.

— Job shadowing, involving on-the-job observation of an employee in a career interest area.

— Reading improvement employability skills, an instruction class which teaches resume writing, how to fill out job applications and interviewing techniques.

— Job placement, the final step, which helps students or graduates obtain full-time, part-time or temporary jobs or enter training programs suitable to their skills and interests.

Of RHS' 30-some vocational education classes, General Merchandising has the most enrollees with 182 students. Nursing Assistant, Aide and Health Occupations Cluster ranks second with 77 students participating.

Data Processing and Auto Mechanics come next with 72 students in each category. Office Computer Component has 66 students enrolled. Construction and Maintenance has 57 and Welding and Cutting is next in line with 47 students.

Romulus High School's vocational education program has received state-wide recognition and acclaim from the State Board of Education. Many school districts throughout the state send representatives to Romulus to see the high school program in action and try to emulate it.

Most of all, last week was a golden opportunity for members of the Romulus community to visit and take pride in what their own school district has accomplished in placing high school graduates in the job market.

David Krause resigns as Romulus assessor

Dave Krause, assessor for the City of Romulus, resigned last week to accept employment with a Livonia firm.

The Roman learned that he had expressed his inability to work with the newly elected treasurer, Beverly McAnally.

Contacted by the Roman,

McAnally commented: "I've only been to his office once since I've been elected. When I was on council, I don't recall ever having a cross word with him."

She said she had heard that Krause had "made the announcement" that he was "sick" at the thought of having to work with her.

Although the mayor has traditionally appointed the assessor in Romulus, McAnally said the City Charter is clear that his office comes under the treasurer.

"Anyway, I wish him well," said the treasurer.

The recent Detroit News Spelling Bee proved to be one of the longest and most competitive ever held at Riverside School in the Huron School District.

Thirty students, 10 from each fifth grade class, began spelling at 9:45 a.m. The field of spellers remained large for almost an hour, but the field soon narrowed to three contestants, one from each of the fifth grades.

Ricky LeBlanc, who is in Sophie Murzin's room, was the second runner-up. Vikki Whitney, a newcomer to Riverside from Trenton, was the first runner-up. She is in Luciano Emanuele's class.

Tony Caselli, of Nancy Kendrick's room, carefully corrected the misspelled word further, then correctly spelled simply and was declared the winner.

Tony and Vikki will be invited to the next contest where representatives of surrounding districts will be competing in the district spelling bee.

Clergy again 'toes' battle line

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Feature Syndicate

What will they do this time — if the draft is reinstated? The word "Canada" is coming up in many conversations of young men (and women) today.

During the Vietnam War, tens of thousands of youths fled to Canada to avoid the draft. Vietnam was an unpopular war, and eventually it was the sentiment raised against it by the under-30 segment of the population which was credited with bringing the war to an end.

If the U.S. should be drawn into military conflict in the Middle East, will it be another unpopular adventure like Vietnam?

Many of the anti-Vietnam War clergymen I have talked with are not sure yet what position they will take, if there is another draft. They do not know if they will open draft counseling centers (which, during the Vietnam conflict, advised youth on how to avoid the draft).

One Episcopal clergyman says: "I have always been against the draft. I was against the Vietnam War. But I fear we may have to resort to the draft again in view of what the Soviets are doing in the Middle East."

Battle lines are being drawn today in bars, homes and in the Letters to the Editor columns of the newspapers.

After one columnist wrote that he doesn't want to risk his own or his sons' lives in another war, the letters started pouring in.

"What if we hadn't gone overseas in 1941-45?" one angry reader replied. "What about all those poor, defenseless Jewish people we freed from the concentration camps? Your words of disunity are repugnant to me."

On the other side of the line, a mother wrote: "How can we make the people in high places understand that we don't bear sons, watch over them in sickness, try to keep them from accidents, just to have them killed on some piece of ground that no one gives a damn about?"

Is it time for preachers to take up a position on one side of the battle lines or the other?

"I haven't preached on it yet," says a Presbyterian pastor. "But I might. I'm not sure what I will say."

Many don't know how they would counsel the young men who might come to them with the problem of whether or not to answer a draft call or flee to Canada. They have memories of what happened to many draft-evaders in the Vietnam War.

"It is one thing to be called a draft-dodger by those who don't know you," says one pastor. "But to be scorned and disowned by people you thought understood you — your parents, in some cases — is another. Unless you are very stable, this can mess you up pretty terribly."

Is the draft-evader a traitor or a witness to the Christian doctrine that it is wrong to kill?

Those who oppose war on religious grounds can ask for classification as conscientious objectors (COs).

COs are not freed from their obligation to serve the country. Some work as non-combatants in the military, others are assigned civilian jobs "contributing to the national health and safety" — maybe in correction centers or settlement houses.

During the Vietnam War the Supreme Court ruled that the status of CO is open only to those who are opposed to all wars. In an 8 to 1 ruling, the justices held that "persons who object solely to participation in a particular war" cannot claim CO status.

Some religious leaders appealed to Congress to change the law so that anybody who considers a particular war "unjust" can claim CO classification.

Many clergymen took courses in draft counseling in the 1960s and '70s so they could advise the young men in their churches of their rights. But one Cleveland pastor was turned down by his lay board of trustees when he asked for permission to open a draft counseling center in his church.

"We don't want to help draft-dodgers," was the attitude of the lay leaders, he says.

"What was ironic about this," says the pastor, "was that most of these men were businessmen who see nothing wrong in hiring a tax consultant so they can take advantage of all the deductions the law allows them. Then they turn around and call a teen-ager a draft-dodger, if he consults a draft counselor to see what he is entitled legally to under the Selective Service Law."

This pastor estimates that up to 75 percent of the youths who fled the country during the Vietnam hostilities could have stayed in this country and been exempt from active military duty, if they had had proper counseling.

Some who chose prison rather than going to Vietnam, or fled to Canada, found that even then they were not free from the hatred of society.

Auditing contract causes problems

State House moves to salvage revenue sharing funds

Emergency plans are being prepared by the State House of Representative's Fiscal Agency to save the state's 83 counties from losing millions of dollars in revenue sharing funds resulting from a "hitherto undisclosed" auditing contract known only to Gov. William Milliken's office and the State Department of Treasury, Barry McGuire, director of the Michigan

Association of Counties (MAC) revealed in a mail-o-gram to Wayne County.

"Wayne County is anticipating $13.5 million in Revenue Sharing funds, provided a waiver of the deadline and a compliance audit—which could cost the county as much as $1 million—is granted," said Paul Benko, director of auditing for the County's Board of Auditors.

Manning said information received by his office Thursday indicates the Michigan Department of Treasury has decided, at the last minute, to dump responsibility of county audits of general and federal revenue sharing funds into the laps of the 83 counties despite the fact recent hearings being conducted by State Representative Dominic J. Jacobetti (D-Negaunee), chairman of the Appropriations Committee, has turned up a secret contract giving the state that responsibility. That committee has asked the fiscal agency to prepare the emergency plans.

"Unless the crisis is resolved immediately," McGuire's communication indicated, "Michigan taxpayers will be called upon to dig into their pockets for some $4 to $5 million to pay private CPAs to do the required federal compliance audits."

"The state has not had 'full funds' audit of Wayne County books since 1963 and the last 'general funds' audit was not conducted until 1974. At that time," he explained, "the state found our system to be excellent—now they claim it's 'inauditable'. That was a cheap shot."

"Wayne County has the most advanced and sophisticated computerized financial accounting system in the nation. It should be, it was computerized by Arthur Young and Company, an internationally known and respected firm of Certified Public Accountants."

According to McGuire: "The hearings have developed hitherto undisclosed facts that a contract, which obligated the State Treasury Department to conduct federal revenue sharing, as well as general fund, audits of all Michigan counties and large cities, has been revoked. The only officials aware of the existence of the contract were the Governor's Office and the Department of Treasury.

"The contract," he continued, "was entered into by Gov. Milliken and the then vice-president Gerald Ford. The Legislative Committee requested the Governor's Office to report on the contract and given an explanation of its severance."

It is expected the state legislature will be asked to assume the financial obligation of preparing the individual compliance audits and the Treasury Department to report on which counties it has audited within the past three years.

According to McGuire, the treasury department's director Loren Monroe and his assistant, Vivian Carpenter, invited to the hearing, were severely chastized for failing to notify counties earlier of the crisis situation and to do the job (of auditing), which they admitted was their obligation. McGuire said he was told in a telephone conversation with the Office of Revenue Sharing (ORS) this week that such state audits will be acceptable for county compliance.

"Phillip Perry, Federal Office of Revenue Sharing Manager," McGuire said, "has assured MAC that extensions (waivers) allowing the counties time to comply and qualify for their funds will be granted to those counties requesting the extensions."

Long-range ed planning sought

The State Board of Education will hold a series of hearings throughout Michigan to give citizens and educators an opportunity to help develop long-range education plans for Michigan.

State Board President Barbara Roberts Mason said the regional meetings will help the state board establish plans and priorities for the next decade.

"It is essential that we start planning now to meet the challenges of the unpredictable years ahead and to lay the foundation for the kind of education system we want for our state in the 21st century," Mrs. Mason said.

Mrs. Mason hopes students, parents, non-parents, senior citizens, teachers, school administrators and school board members, business and labor representatives and higher education personnel will voice their concerns and discuss such issues as curriculum, declining enrollment, changing family patterns and values and support for public education.

"In order to meet the challenges of the 1980s and beyond, the State Board of Education—with the help of the citizens of our state—must try to determine short and long-range goals that will bring about educational change and progress," she said. "At the same time, local school boards must offer the leadership and vision needed in their communities to meet the educational needs of our children, youth and adults."

Mrs. Mason said one of the most serious problems facing education today "is the public's vague lack of confidence in all institutions."

"While citizens generally are more vocal in their criticism of government, I am convinced the people of our state want strong educational leadership at the state and local level," she said.

The last major study of public education in Michigan was made by the State Board of Education in the late 1960s. The Thomas Report—named after its author, Professor J. Alan Thomas of the University of Chicago—laid the groundwork for many changes that occurred in Michigan education during the 1970s.

A schedule for the hearings will be announced at a later date.

Some of the questions that will be asked by the state board as it holds hearings around the state will be:

- What should be the directions of education in the 80's?
- What are the needs of Michigan's public schools?
- What are the needs of public school students?
- Are our schools in tune with our state's and nation's present and future needs?
- How can we work together to improve support for public education?
- How can the State Board of Education assist local school districts in assuring educational excellence for all students?

Huffaker directs leadership school

W. Grant Huffaker of Belleville recently served as director of the largest Civil Air Patrol squadron leadership school ever held nationwide.

He was responsible for arranging the logistics of the course and making sure the guidelines for instruction were met.

A squadron leadership school is designed to help prepare promising senior members in CAP for command and staff positions at squadron level. The material in the intensive 2-day course covers such areas as counseling techniques, planning activities, leadership, and instruction in individual specialty areas.

Huffaker, who holds the grade of major, helped plan another school last year and has solid experience behind him in the field, having served as both squadron and group commander. He currently is assigned to the state headquarters of CAP in Michigan where he serves as director of senior programs.

Civil Air Patrol is a nationwide volunteer organization whose threefold mission includes aerospace education, a cadet program for teenagers and search and rescue. For more information on CAP activities write Michigan Wing headquarters, 9505 Groh Road, Grosse Ile 48138, or call 675-3066.

WHAT ABOUT EMBALMING?
There are varying laws and regulations about embalming throughout our country by state and even by some cities. They differ by customs, religious beliefs, usage and consumer demands.

Embalming is not usually required by law except under certain conditions. It is usually written into law if death was due to a communicable disease or if final disposition has to be delayed too long or if the body is to be carried from one state to another.

The needs for such requirements are obvious. The advantages of embalming are three-fold: 1) It allows survivors time to make proper and unhurried funeral arrangements; 2) It permits relatives to come from afar for the funeral; and 3) Embalming preserves the body in a favorable appearance for the final viewings. In the case of a devastating illness or violent death, this third point becomes all the more important. While one can sometimes eliminate the embalming costs, the alternative solutions usually end up as more expensive and more harrowing.

If you have questions on this subject of embalming, please feel free to call us for further explanation.

Part One: On the road to the White House

By DAVID M. MAXFIELD
Smithsonian News Service

What computer and television technology is doing for today's presidential campaigns, torchlight parades and other political hoopla accomplished for elections already in the history books.

Picture this scene: Hartford, Conn., a night shortly before the election of 1860. Abraham Lincoln's backers, known as the Wide-Awakes, parade through the streets carrying huge frame boxes wrapped in thin cotton and stamped with political slogans. Illuminated from the inside by kerosene torches, the home-made transparencies tower over the line of marchers, dramatically lighting up the night sky.

Today, television ad campaigns, debates, interviews and direct mail operations have replaced many other colorful gimmicks the candidates once used to compete for press coverage and public attention.

In the 1800s, for example, it was popular for a business that supported a candidate to link its products to his name, resulting in the candidate endorsing such items as shoes, sewing thread and tobacco.

And probably never to be seen again are the ideas dreamed up for the extravagant 1840 contest between William Henry Harrison and Martin Van Buren. In what must have been a very mobile campaign, Harrison's backers pulled around symbolic log cabins to give the aristocratic Harrison an image of humble, down-home origins. They also hit on the idea of rolling a large, slogan-covered ball from Washington to Baltimore to draw attention to the candidate and his platform.

Not overlooked in those days was the importance of building an identifiable image for the candidates; the task was as crucial then as it is now.

"It was important from the early elections to associate the candidate with something," says Herbert Collins, curator of political history at the Smithsonian's National Museum of History and Technology.

From the first, military careers were stressed. Washington, Jackson, Harrison, Zachary Taylor, Grant and others found their general's stars helpful in winning votes, but other work and careers—"Abe, the Rail Splitter"—also were woven into the campaigns. Many of the earliest, as well as Jimmy Carter's 1976 outsider approach, emphasized the candidate's concern for and connection with the common man.

Once the image was created, a vast array of campaign devices, from the simplest lapel button (IKE) to elaborate parades, helped put the message across.

Thousands of objects—most of them common, a few valuable and some quite strange—have been enlisted over the years. Many of these now are part of the Smithsonian's collection of political memorabilia—buttons, stick pins, bumper stickers, flags, bandannas, kerchiefs, ceramics, pillows, hats, songs, animals, coins, cartoons, advertisements, torches, lanterns, scarves, T-shirts, posters, lunch pails, buckets, decals, mugs, signs, umbrellas, sewing kits, dishes, sunglasses, spore tire covers, pencils, pens, playing cards, dolls and peanuts.

From Washington's time to about 1840, most campaign items were made at home by a candidate's backers. But as the Industrial Revolution gained momentum, manufacturers began producing political glass and ceramic items and printing textiles with portraits of the candidates and their slogans.

Many of the early ceramic pitchers were produced in England, often leading to confusion. The English craftsmen would ship campaign goods for different candidates—but with the same distorted portrait on each. "They had in mind that all the funding fathers looked alike," Collins says.

The number and variety of campaign objects increased rapidly after 1860. Cloth-covered lapel buttons appeared in the last quarter of the 19th century, followed by celluloid in the 1890s and tintype versions in the 20th century. The political marching groups of the late 1800s also spurred the demand for torches and lanterns.

After 1900, political materials became more subdued, but in recent years, according to Collins, some campaign art is looking colorful again, moving away, for example, from the one-word button that sprang out of the 1940s. Today, the button still is the most widely used political device.

Political cartooning, descended from the 18th century, still adds dash to election years. In fact, the two national party symbols, the donkey and the elephant, originated from the pen of Thomas Nast, a cartoonist at Harper's Weekly during the 1870s.

Vilification, often associated with cartoons, also has strong ties to old election campaigns. Some years are worse than others, but a low point probably was reached in the campaign of 1884, when the Republicans attempted to smear Grover Cleveland with stories of his alleged indiscreet dalliance with a Buffalo widow who had borne him a child. "Ma, ma, where's my Pa? Gone to the White House, Ha! Ha! Ha! went one chant.

The Democrats came right back with "Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine, Continental Liar from the state of Maine," referring to charges that the Republican candidate received kickbacks from the railroads while a member of Congress in the 1870s.

Today, the national political party headquarters screen much of the political material produced by American and foreign firms. In 1968, for example, several Oriental companies exported to the United States American flags in which the portraits of Nixon or Humphrey were centered, a use of the flag made illegal in 1905. The flags were stopped at both party headquarters.

NADF offers trees

The National Arbor Day Foundation is now making it possible for organizations to sell trees as a fund-raising project.

Clubs, churches and other organizations can sell trees in their community to raise money for their activities, and the foundation will mail the trees directly to the customers' homes. The local sponsoring organization never has to handle the trees, according to the foundation.

The Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit organization, is working to improve the quality of life in communities throughout the country by encouraging tree planting.

Red Maple, Sugar Maple, Redbud, Weeping Willow, Tulip Tree and White Flowering Dogwood trees are sold for $3.50, including a profit of $1.25 per tree for the local sponsoring organization.

The trees are 4 to 6 feet tall and come with complete planting instructions. They are delivered at an appropriate time for planting.

Organizations may obtain free sales literature and order forms by calling (402) 474-5655, or writing the National Arbor Day Foundation, Arbor Lodge 100, Nebraska City, NE 68410.

Organizations should indicate the number of persons who will be selling.

'That's where the money is'

Reward programs help deter bank holdups

When Willie Sutton, the former notorious bandit, was asked why he robbed banks, he replied: "Because that's where the money is."

Sutton wouldn't be surprised to know that even today, "that's where the money is," but bandits are seeing less of it, at least in the Detroit metropolitan area. In fact, during the last five years, holdups of financial institutions in the tri-county area (Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties) were down 79 percent.

What's even more remarkable is that during that same time, the City of Detroit experienced a 90 percent reduction on bank robberies, while nationwide holdups of financial institutions have increased 86 percent.

There are many factors which contributed to this remarkable achievement in Detroit not the least of which is the $1,000 reward program, sponsored by the Clearinghouse Association. Since its inception in February 1975, rewards totaling $94,000 have been paid to concerned citizens, resulting in the arrest and indictment of 105 bank robbers and the solution of 199 robberies.

Periodically, reward adds appear in local newspapers. In addition, reward placards are displayed in city buses. Pictures of individuals who police officials believe were involved in a recent holdup are reprinted from film taken by bank surveillance cameras. Citizens who recognize the robbery suspect are asked to call the local office of the FBI with their information—the identity of the caller remains confidential at all times.

If the information given leads to the arrest and indictment of the bank robber, the citizen receives $1,000 in cash in as little as 10 days from the date of arrest. The key ingredient which has contributed to the success of the program is that rewards are paid upon indictment and not conviction—conviction and appeal processes can sometimes take as long as three or four years.

Also, citizens are eligible for a reward, even if a suspect's picture doesn't appear in the reward ad. This plays on the theory that someone always knows the identity of a robber, even when details of a robbery haven't been published. Reward recipients have included community groups, concerned citizens and even relatives of the bandits.

William J. Kalmar, chairman of the reward program for 1980 and an assistant vice-president of DETROITBANK Corp., said: "Presently, 68 financial institutions participate in the program. This includes 56 banks and 12 savings and loan associations, which comprise more than 900 offices in the tri-county area. With this network of offices, every time a reward ad appears in the newspaper more than 4 million people become eligible for a $1,000 reward.

"For would-be bandits, the odds are disheartening."

Not only have holdups of financial institutions decreased the amount of "loot" taken continues to be nominal. Consider this, for the years 1977 through 1979, the average loss from a bank robbery in the tri-county area was $1,269. To some, that may seem substantial, but it represents $24 per week, or 60 cents an hour—a paltry sum. In addition, most bandits are apprehended (a more than 85 percent closure rate), and, once tried and convicted, are sentenced on the average to 11 years in prison.

John Thistlewaite, vice-chairman of the program and security officer at Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit, said that while the reward program was the main reason for the reduction in holdups, there were other contributory factors—installation of bullet-resistant glass, use of tear gas and red dye packets and the placement of bank guards in select offices. All these measures are then complemented by the training programs at the various institutions wherein tellers and management personnel are instructed in how to react to a holdup.

"It's these frontline employees who should be given credit for maintaining losses at a manageable level," Thistlewaite said.

Kalmar added that the publishing of reward ads has produced some bizarre events.

In one instance, a bank robber, after seeing his picture prominently displayed in the local newspaper, turned himself in, apparently hoping to use the $1,000 for his defense fund," Kalmar said. "You can imagine his disappointment in learning that he wasn't eligible for the reward."

FBI spokesman John Anthony of the Detroit office echoed Kalmar's praise of the program.

"It's easy to gauge success just by looking at the numbers," he said. "In 1974 there were 237 holdups in the tri-county area, in 1979 there were 50. More significant were the statistics for the City of Detroit—20 holdups in 1979. Contrast this with the five holdups that occurred in the City of Detroit on Just Dec. 23, 1974 alone. I remember that day all too well."

While similar programs have been established in other states, none have been as successful as the Detroit program. Kalmar explained that the willingness of the reward program members to pay on indictment and to buy space in newspapers has spelled success.

"Since 1974, the members have collectively spent $440,000 to finance the program, and we believe the results have paid off," he said. "While bank robbery still is a serious problem, concerned citizens and the financial community have proven they can and will take steps to combat the problem by working together with police and FBI officials."

"Everyone has benefitted from our efforts...everyone except bank robbers."

Smokers Affirm Merit Choice!

MERIT smokers report "no taste sacrifice" in switch from high tar brands.

MERIT: Proven Long Term Alternative To High Tar Brands.

New national smoker study results prove it.

Proof: The overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers polled feel they didn't sacrifice taste in switching from high tar cigarettes.

Proof: 96% of MERIT smokers don't miss former high tar brands.

Proof: 9 out of 10 enjoy smoking as much since switching to MERIT, are glad they switched, and report MERIT is the best tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Smokers Prefer MERIT 3 To 1!

New taste tests with thousands of smokers prove it.

Proof: A significant majority of smokers rate MERIT taste as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Proof: Of the 95% stating a preference, 3 out of 4 smokers chose the MERIT low tar/good taste combination over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed.

You've read the results. The conclusion is clearer than ever: MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar.

A combination that's attracting more and more smokers every day and—more importantly—satisfying them long term.

In coming years

Today's high-priced homes will be seen as bargains

The seemingly high price of homes today will be seen as comparative bargains in only a few years, according to the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR).

Citing a study covering the 1973-1978 period, WWOCBR president John J. Halser pointed out that increases in materials, land, labor and financing costs along with more government regulations forced prices higher.

"As recently as 1972, the typical new home could be built for about $17.60 a square foot," he said. "By 1978, this cost had climbed nearly 62 percent to reach $28.50."

"There is no reason to expect that this average annual increase of 12 percent won't continue. So, by 1983, these costs will be nearing $50 a square foot. Unless the average new home becomes a great deal smaller, it will cost in the $90,000 range just to build."

Halser noted that new home prices have gone up even faster than actual square foot costs.

Part of the reason has been a continuing trend to larger homes furnished with added amenities," he said. "The average home of 1,660 square feet in 1973 grew to 1,745, or about 5 percent larger, by 1978. There also was a very sharp rise in those including at least one fireplace, central air conditioning, electric heat, at least two bathrooms and a dishwasher."

"The average mortgage remains in effect for about 8 years and roughly 20 percent of our population moves each year, so many of these homes will enter the existing home market in the early 1980s."

Halser said the median price of a new home in 1978 was $55,700.

Chances are that these same homes would resell for about 20 percent more or close to $68,000 in 1980," he said. "Even at a 10 percent annual increase, which appears conservative, these same homes will command about $100,000 as early as 1983."

"Whoever owns them will enjoy this accelerated build-up of equity as a hedge against the expected continuation of double-digit inflation."

Halser said this is one of the reasons Realtors are continuing to urge prospects in position to buy to move into the market now.

"Mortgage interest rates have edged down from the peak encountered late last year," he said. "As a result we are beginning to see increased buyer interest and the trend toward a softening of existing home prices is beginning to slow."

"Interest rates may well drop a bit lower, particularly if mortgage money supplies begin to build. This will encourage selling prices to climb. The potential saving from waiting for a further mortgage rate drop will in most cases be lost in a higher home price and the need for a larger mortgage and down payment."

Editorial opinions

SEV is not real culprit of taxes

State Equalized value (SEV) has been tagged by many residents, and elected officials as well, as the culprit responsible for the increasing school taxes faced by residents.

But, according to officials close to the system designed to spread taxes uniformly across the community, SEV is not the reason for increasing taxes.

Millage spread against SEV is.

Residents of this community have witnessed the increase of their school taxes by as much as 27 percent in some circumstances, and have generally chosen to place the blame for those increases on the backs of their elected state officials.

Moreover, some of those officials have chosen to try and inform the public of the real reasons behind these huge tax increases, and the message coming from Tom Brown, D-Westland, is:

"The State Constitution mandates that all properties in Michigan be assessed equally and will not create an assessment of more than 50 percent of the property's fair market value. But today's economic inflation has made it nearly impossible to stabilize assessments year to year."

The determination of what your actual tax bill will be in dollars, is the local school district, or any other authorized taxing authority. Those units of government determine the funds necessary to fund the needed services. Based on that need, a budget is prepared, and a tax rate is spread against the established SEV to determine the actual tax dollars due.

Therefore, it is apparent, according to Brown, that it is not the state that determines tax rates or the amounts of taxes billed. Rather it is the local taxing unit of government, either elected or appointed for this purpose, that determines the taxes you pay each year.

Consequently, citizens upset with what they may believe is an unfair tax burden, should direct their concerns to the local units of government rather than their state lawmakers.

We believe that Brown has made a good point.

A review of state aid to school districts, for example, would show that in spite of increasing taxes to support the districts, state contributions to schools have also increased considerably. But school officials, always looking for someone to hang responsibility on, have not labored hard to get that message across.

In the Wayne-Westland school district, a 1979 decision by voters to approve a 3-mill tax increase, actually resulted in a tax increase of more than 27 percent. And, while upset residents sought a target for their hostility, school board explanations were short in coming.

A review of the Wayne-Westland situation would show that the 27 percent increase resulted not only from the new 3-mill increase approved by the voters, but also from 3 mills the district has never spread. In addition, the one percent collection fee, authorized by law to cover the collection cost of our taxes, rose an additional 16.5 percent because of the increases in the total taxes collected.

We would hope that in the future, school officials and officials of local units of government would work a little harder to inform citizens of what they are paying, why they must pay it and what if anything they get for their tax money.

Census is a costly count

By CARL LEVIN
U.S. Senator

The 1980 census, the constitutionally required population count that the federal government has been taking every 10 years since 1790, will be the largest, most expensive and costly count ever. It's up to us to make it all worthwhile.

More than a mere headcount, the census is an important tool for innumerable resource centers. However, it is too often ignored by the American people.

During the 70s, as a direct result of the undercount of the 1970 census, Detroit alone lost more than $52 million in federal allocations. This undercounting is the major problem for the U.S. Census Bureau, but it is also one that should be resolved, particularly by those of us in Michigan.

An undercount hurts everyone. Although we believe most people missed in a census are minorities, the money lost affects the entire community.

A few examples of programs which are dependent in some way upon the calculations of the Census Bureau include: student loans by the government and federal aid to highways, law enforcement and unemployment programs.

Census forms will be in the mail on March 28. The bureau estimates that the form should only take about 15 minutes to fill out. This 15 minutes of your time will supply the Census Bureau with accurate statistics to determine the changes in the composition of the nation.

Bureau employees expect the 1980 tally to show a number of shifts in society that occurred during the seventies, including: an increasing number of husbandless women as the heads of families, a decline of the traditional father, mother, child family structure and an increasing number of working women.

Along with these social shifts, the census will indicate population movement, migrations of ethnic groups and the decline or increase in the population of cities and suburbs.

These population statistics are extremely important to Michigan, since many are predicting Michigan will lose a congressional seat in the U.S. House of Representatives. It is vital that Michigan extend itself to report everyone to avoid the loss of this seat. Congressional seats are Michigan's voice in the nation's capitol, and every voice is needed.

It is a popular myth that all representatives of the government are to be feared. In trying to resolve this problem, census officials are making a concerted effort in 1980 to staff local organizations with people who live in that particular community.

Another point that many people are not aware of is that the Census Bureau is strictly bound to confidentiality. The Social Security number, which the government uses to identify citizens, is never requested on a census form.

Also, the questions the survey poses are no more intricate or personal than any you may have once answered for insurance purposes or for a credit card application.

The information is compiled and depersonalized to group people for studies, federal loan assistance and other programs. The other executive bureaus do not have access to particular information about citizens and even the president should not be able to get this information.

Above all, what needs to be emphasized is that the bureau is seeking sociological information that will help shape government policies and that this information is applied as group statistics: it is not used in any way as personal reports on any individual families or individuals.

It is the duty of every citizen to understand this process so that Michigan can be equally represented — economically, politically and socially.

It is difficult to say which group stands to lose the most in an undercount. Cities obviously lose on planning programs, federal aid to recreational facilities and in many other programs. On the other hand, the rural community has decreased to only one twentieth of America's population, and to continue programs vital to its interests, it desperately needs every voice.

In 1970, the Census Bureau apparently undercounted by 5.5 million people. Although the bureau has taken steps to remedy this situation, without the cooperation of the people, another drastic undercount is likely.

Remember the $52 million Detroit lost because of its undercount. Remember that names, addresses, telephone numbers from the census forms are never entered into a computer, and that individual responses are not available to the FBI, Internal Revenue Service, immigration authorities or to local authorities such as social services agencies and police departments.

Remember the extra congressional seat that Michigan cannot afford to lose. And most importantly, remember that Michigan is counting on you. Answer the census.

All about House Bill 4075

By THOMAS H. BROWN
State Representative
37th District

House Bill 4075 is a response to the suffering many of our citizens experience from drastic increases in assessed valuation and the equally drastic increases in property taxes that result. Increased assessments might represent the "true cash value" of homes, but they place a heavy burden on people who have no intention of selling their houses, and who nevertheless must pay increased property taxes out of incomes that consistently lag behind inflation. While passage of Proposal E in 1978 has placed limits on the rate of property tax increases, many of the people who voted for it have been unpleasantly surprised to learn that the amendment has not prevented their property taxes from increasing.

The Homestead Property Tax Credit program has worked well over the years to provide relief from increasing property taxes. But the system can be modified to grant more relief, and its mechanics can be adjusted both to make credits easier to compute and to speed checks to people who need the money to pay their property taxes.

House Bill 4075 would place before voters in the August, 1980 primary election legislation proposing to increase the rate of the income tax to 5.4 percent, from 4.6 percent, in order to raise $410 million in revenue.

Of that total, $300 million would go toward larger property tax credits, in effect nearly doubling the current program's payments of $325 million. The remaining $100 million would off-set increasing the personal exemption against the income tax to $1,800, from $1,500. In addition to increasing the personal exemption, the bill would require that the exemption be adjusted annually based on the average change in the cost of living (Detroit consumer price index).

Under the present system, general taxpayers can apply for property tax credits of up to 60 percent of the amount by which property taxes exceed 3.5 percent of household income. Special taxpayers (senior citizens, eligible veterans, paraplegics, etc.) compute their credits according to other, more liberal schedules. The bill would provide a single schedule for everyone, but general taxpayers would receive 75 percent of the amount by which property taxes exceed certain property tax levels and percentages of household income. Special taxpayers would receive 100 percent of the excess property taxes.

The bill would also create a system under which property tax credits would be paid in advance of income tax refunds. The Treasury Department would issue before December 1 of each year a certificate in the amount of the property tax credit so that a claimant could use it to pay property taxes, either directly or to an escrow account. Moreover, because it would separate property tax rebate payments from income tax refunds, the bill would make the credit system more visible to the public, and therefore permit them to take full advantage of it.

A positive side to CUFA?

To the Editor:

We have been following the articles regarding the CUFA situation with interest.

We feel that the reporters did a fine job of investigative reporting. However, there is a good side that was never mentioned.

Does all the information that was printed have to be negative? Does the adage, "It is an ill wind that blows no good" still apply in this day and age?

We would like to see in the near future some positive remarks concerning the efforts and results of some of the good people associated with CUFA.

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. L. Grech

Our GIs in Germany

To the Editor:

I would like to say a few words on behalf of some of our servicemen and their families, stationed in West Germany. I went to Germany to visit my son, a soldier in the U.S. Army there. I was very upset over the conditions I have seen. I had the privilege of shopping in the Px and commissary stores and could not believe how very over-priced everything is.

The meat was left to spoil because no one could afford to buy it. In comparison to our local grocery and department stores, I have not seen a bargain in any of the U.S. Army service stores.

Most servicemen and their families cannot afford a car for transportation, they walk or ride bicycles to and from their bases.

The only ones who drove (old) cars were high ranking officers, due to the high cost of insurance (double or more of USA rates). Unmarried soldiers that are forced to live on base in barracks, live in buildings that are not fit to live in.

Buildings are old and run down in comparison to the living quarters the German soldiers live in.

After talking to a U.S. Army officer, I was told not enough funds are available to fix up these places because of constant tax cuts on our military spending by our Federal Government.

Due to an endless long waiting list for Government military housing, families that must live off base pay very high rental for apartments rented to them by local civilians.

In the meantime TV commercials put out by our Federal Government — encouraging our young men to enlist and go to Germany to see the country and travel, what a joke, a sad one at that. With the U.S. dollar steadily declining in value against the German mark, our soldiers must face a reduced standard of living almost daily. Obviously I have selfish reasons for being concerned, but I believe this situation should be the concern of all Americans.

More on taxation

To the Editor:

I would like to apprise your readers of our petition drive to repeal the Single Business Tax and to reduce the Personal Income Tax.

We have thousands of petitions out, but we need 229,000 signatures by mid-May to put this proposal on the November, 1980 ballot.

The proposal will repeal the Single Business Tax outright, will forbid the reintroduction of either the inventory tax or the franchise tax, and will replace it with the old corporate income tax at a 10 percent rate with a $50,000 deduction of these profits.

Only corporations will pay, as before, and only those that have profits of $50,000 or more. The $50,000 will be indexed to rise with inflation.

The proposal will also cut the personal income tax to 4.4 percent immediately, to 4.2 percent in 1984 and to 4 percent in 1986. It will raise the personal exemption to $1,800 and will index this to rise with inflation. Further, all retirement income will be banned from taxation by the State of Michigan.

I urge all your readers to write for petitions. They can be obtained from the Fredricks SBT Repeal Committee, P.O. Box 1980, Fennville, Michigan 49408.

By CAROL PREMO, C.S.W.

Carol Premo, a Certified Social Worker in private practice in Belleville, Mich., will be presenting weekly answers to problems which may have been the source of either joy or pain for some of our readers.

You are invited to ask Carol about a problem or discuss a solution by mailing your letter to: Carol Premo, Associated Newspapers, 47818 W. Huron River Drive, Belleville, Mich. 48111.

Dear Carol,
I have never written to anyone before to help me solve a problem, however I read your column and think you can help.
I have a married son whom I love dearly and worry about his drinking in this last year. He is very good to his family in many ways — recently he will go bar-hopping with his friends and stay out all night. Causing great concern to wife, children, mother. Should I confront him with the anxiety he is causing.

Hope

Dear Hope,
There is probably little that you can do about the behavior of an adult male. However, there is no reason you cannot once address your concerns to your son. You can let him know you are concerned, that you worry about him. Ask him if he feels anything can be done about this situation, like calling. You may indicate a concern for his drinking and if he appears amenable to discussing this, you may suggest counseling or AA. I don't really get a clear impression at this point, whether it is immaturity, marital problems, drinking problems. But I do get the clear impression of problems. I would need more information to know what kind of counselor.
P.S. Don't nag although the temptation may be great. Advice is only taken when the person has already come to that conclusion.

Bless my 'sole'...

By JIM BRADLEY

Well, bless my sole. In fact, bless both of them.
The soles on my brown buckle shoes, that is, The shoes I just tossed in the trash can after nine years of faithful service. I bought those trusty size 10's in the spring of 1971 and had them resoled four times before they finally bit the dust for the last time.

Those brown shoes and I covered a lot of cement together and I had them on when some pretty earth-shaking events took place. Just think of everything that happened between early spring of 1971 and last week. That's a lot of mileage to rack up on a pair of soles and heels.

They wore like cement, those time-worn brogans. We went through a lot together. Of course, I didn't wear those brown buckle shoes every single day — but they covered my flat feet most of the time because brown is one of my two favorite colors. The other one is blue.

I don't know about you but I think that's a pretty good record — wearing the same pair of shoes for almost a decade. Who says they don't make things like they used to? My brown buckle shoes and I became fast friends during our 10-year friendship — and they were like a close buddy to me.

I know there will be some of you who laugh or scorn and think that's a little silly. That's all right. My shoes caressed my feet in solid comfort.

What's more comfortable than a broken in pair of shoes?

I remember years ago when an acquaintance of mine introduced me to his friend like this: "Jim's as regular as an old shoe." Maybe that wasn't so good after all because later on my acquaintance proved unfaithful and walked all over me. But I still like the reference of being "as comfortable as an old shoe."

One reason those brown buckle shoes were so special to me is because I have trouble finding shoes that fit real good. I have flat feet — I mean, no arch at all. Press your hand down on the top of a desk or counter as hard as you can and you get the impression of my flat feet.

I remember back in high school gym class. Everyone would look at my feet and ask, "Where are the arches?" "Down at McDonald's," I would have replied if the popular hamburger chain had been in existence at the time.

Then came 1951 and the Korean War was peaking in intensity. I was entering my third year at the Dearborn Post Office as a letter carrier when I got a postcard in the mail from the U.S. Army. That postcard instructed this 20-year-old mailbox-rattler to report to Fort Wayne in Detroit for an induction physical. I was scared, I didn't want to go into the army. I'd rather be a live coward than a dead hero, I rationalized.

But duty called and I answered, along with hundreds of other local young American boys. We were given various physical and written tests and then interviewed by a psychologist. I hadn't flunked out yet when we were all ordered to strip down to our birthday suits. Since I couldn't remember when my birthday was, I didn't wear anything.

We were ordered to walk barefoot through water and across a cement floor in front of a long row of doctors. I watched as the others walked across the room, their wet footprints showing the clear indentation where their arch curved on the inside of each foot.

I trekked through the water and padded barefoot across the floor in front of the table of bewildered doctors. They watched in awe as I walked in my own peculiar way — bow-legged, pidgeon-toed and flat-footed. I looked at the trail of wet footprints behind me and saw there was a solid wet mark with no indentation where my arch should be.

"How long have you been so flat-footed?" asked one doctor, shaking his head.

"Ever since I kicked the slats out of the end of my baby crib," I replied, hoping he would believe me.

"Don't be ridiculous! How did your feet get so flat?"

"Well, when I was born, the doctor slapped me on the seat and I landed on my feet," I suggested.

"Is it true your mother used the bottom of your stocking foot for an ironing board?" the doctor continued.
"Only when she had extra-large items to press," I said seriously.

"What is your occupation?"
"I'm a mail carrier — but I probably won't be carrying mail much longer," I lied, hoping he would believe me.

He wasn't fooled for a minute. The wise old doctor again shook his head and said, "Who are you trying to kid, you'll carry mail until you retire." When I reached the end of the line with my induction card in my hand, a doctor reached out and stamped it "non-acceptable."

You know, I walked about 20 miles a day for 19 years carrying mail and my pancake-flat feet have never hurt me. In fact, they help me to keep my balance. But my buddy goes me one better. He has such big feet, the forestry department hired him to stamp out forest fires.

Someone had a hit song a few years ago, entitled: "These shoes were made for walking." I thought about that song title as I dropped my size 10's into the trash can the other day.

I don't know if the author had my brown buckle shoes in mind when he wrote the song or not. But he sure missed a good bet if he didn't.

Little boys and things

By JOYCE HÄGELTHORN

One of the more profound mysteries of the universe is why people, particularly little boys, get so attached to things. The only time they forget this attachment is when a good trade looms on the horizon. All males are born gamblers.

Of course, I wasn't born with this knowledge. I came about it the hard way, more popularly called the trial of error way.

There had been a dawning realization of the phenomenon of the male creature, but it flowered into full awareness in the spring I decided to get rid of the junk which had accumulated all over the house. I put a huge box on the stair landing and told each kid to empty his (or her) closet, dresser drawers and toy boxes, and get rid of all broken toys, discarded items, outgrown clothing and anything else that could be labeled junk.

A couple of weeks passed, and each day I would look into the box and find nothing there. Finally, I managed to catch them all at the same time and I pointed out the empty box, and then took each kid to the door of his room and pointed out the junk lying all around.

"But gee, Mom," they all cried. "That isn't junk. That's our stuff that we need."

Leaning over I picked up a greasy washing machine motor. "How can you NEED something like this?" I asked.

"Did you get that out of that pile right there?" one dirty-faced kid asked. When I said that I had let out a banshee wail and rushed into the room. "That's my tradin' stuff," he shouted.

"Are you trading this, or did you already trade something for it?"

"I already traded Jimmie my wallet Grandma gave me for Christmas for this neat motor, and now I'm getting ready to trade Mike the motor for a gerbil."

"Over my dead body," I shrieked. "Gerbils are creepy creatures..."

"Did you throw away my creepy crawlers?" came another voice from the other side of the room.

"I said, ..." I began when the dirty faced kid saw what his brother was looking at and grabbed it from his hand.

"That's my favorite baseball mitt," he hissed.

"But you never play baseball anymore," I pointed out.

"Who said anything about playing? It's still my favorite. Besides I'm thinkin' about trading it for Joey's Banana Seat..."

Well, that's how I began getting the glimmer that all males are born gamblers, and as the years progressed the theory was substantiated almost every other day. New bicycles were traded for old, neat ones, stereos were traded for frisbees, and when it came to trading tools the frenzy grew until I had to keep all valuables under lock and key.

My boys grew up and I kind of forgot the theory I had developed from a truth until the other day while sitting in the beauty parlor I heard a young mother talking to her hair dresser.

"My little boy is so smart ..." she was saying. I closed my eyes. Aren't all little boys so smart in the eyes of the mother? But they popped open when she continued, and I realized that the final confirmation of the truth I had arrived at so long ago lay in what she was saying.

"My little boy has wanted a father for so long, ever since his own father died. He is always bugging me to get married again and each day he brings home tales of men who are dying to become his very own father. However, yesterday was the living end. His best friends' mother called me and I didn't know whether she was laughing or crying, her voice was so hysterical. 'Your son,' she cried, 'can come right over here and get his gerbil that he traded with my Joey.' I knew there was something wrong, so I asked as gently as I could, even though my knees were knocking together, and my teeth were clenched tight, what he had traded his gerbil for?

"Joey's mother's voice got really high and hysterical but she pronounced the words carefully. 'Your son traded his gerbil to Joey for Joey's father ...'

Salem captures district crown

Prep qualifiers will duel for regional titles at Glenn on Saturday

Got him beaten

Showing a Farmington Harrison cager his back, Plymouth Canton's Sean Houle (41) goes to the hoop for this two-point layup which helped pave the way for a Canton victory.

Plymouth Salem won't have much time to rest on its "District laurels." It would be naive and even dangerous for Coach Ron Krueger and his Rocks to pause and applaud their first Class A District championship which they earned last weekend at Ann Arbor Huron when they know on Saturday they will meet defending Class A state champ and a host of other outstanding teams in the regionals at Westland John Glenn.

Glenn has been designated as one of the host schools for the annual combat which will decide which four wrestlers in each of 13 weight classes will advance to the state finals. The state finals are scheduled for a week from Saturday at East Lansing High School in Lansing.

Salem qualified nine grapplers in winning the Ann Arbor Huron District wrestling down. The Rocks amassed 79 points to beat out league rival, Belleville (66½) for top honors. The field included 33 teams. "Our kids wrestled well," said Krueger whose team piled up a 13-0 dual meet record. "But the real test comes on Saturday at John Glenn. Bedford qualified 10 wrestlers for regionals and they're tough."

Salem will be represented by Jim Schultz at 105, Jeff Brown (112), Jeff Dunson (119), Mark Ross (126), Jerry Valchine (138), Steve Szilagyi (167), Jeff Powers (185), Stan Snider (198) and heavyweight Greg Gattoni.

Belleville continued to peak at the right time. Coach Gerald Malecek's Tigers won the Suburban 8 tournament last weekend and came back and qualified seven of its 13 for regionals. They'll be represented by Walter Young (98), Dan Kelly (105), Kerry O'Keefe (126), Norm Bates (132), John Enzenauer (145), Rick Winekoff (155) and Steve Cook (198).

Bedford won its umpteenth district title but Trenton gave the state champs a battle at Temperance. The Trojans were runner-up by 7½ points (73-65½) while Westland John Glenn finished in a two-way tie for third with Dearborn Heights Annapolis (each with 48 points) and Wayne Memorial was tied for seventh with Monroe (30), a team the Zebras lost the Great Lakes 8 Conference title to.

Vicchy fulfills a dream: tankers beat Dearborn

When he first started out 10 years ago during a time when Belleville High would but dream about swim titles and beating two-time Class A state swim champ, Dearborn, Coach Sam Vicchy vowed that one day his team would beat Dearborn.

Last Thursday that dream became a lucid reality at the Tigers, powered by seven first places, claimed their first-ever victory over the traditionally strong Pioneers 51-32.

"Everyone knew we were waiting for this one," said Vicchy as his team stretched its dual meet victory string to 13 meets. "I admit I was a bit nervous before the first event, but after the kids won it, I knew we would do it."

"In fact the kids came over and told me, 'relax coach, we'll do it,'" Vicchy revealed. "It was a real good team effort and the community, the school — everyone — is proud of the team's accomplishment."

The meet also ended the Suburban 8 Conference phase of the season and the Tigers will take an untarnished 5-0 record into the league championships to be staged March 6-7 at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Senior Chris Renton continued to look impressive as the All-Area Belleville tanker contributed two of the seven Tiger firsts and helped win the 400-yard freestyle relay. Renton turned in a 2:05.3 for the 200-yard individual medley, then swam a 56.2 for the 100-yard butterfly.

Drugs and prep athletes

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

It just doesn't seep through their thick skulls does it? That drugs, illegal drugs, of course, and young athletes don't mix.

In fact, drugs — the illegal kind — don't mix with anything without punishment to mind and body, loved ones and friends.

There are no therapeutic qualities or athletic achievements gained by a "high."

And when the board of education in Cherry Hill set down an outstanding cager for use of drugs recently the clutter of mail and phone calls to this desk, "Demanded we do something about it."

What can we do? If the athlete wants to violate his own body and mind — what can we do? If the athlete doesn't have any respect for the house that his parents have painstakingly nurtured, what can we do.

Drug is a ubiquitous evil — it swarms over the weak. It is worse than the black plague because there is no cure. It is a one-on-one decision, and once caught in the whirlpool it sucks the victim downward. Only with help and understanding can one be lifted from its grasp.

"The attitude that drugs have created is get high and don't give a damn about tomorrow," says John Wood, Wayne Memorial's wrestling coach. "It's not so much what the drugs do to the person and athlete, but what they do to the user's attitude."

Coach Wood said he couldn't tell what proportion of high school athletes used drugs, but he is quick to point out "that it might surprise a lot of us."

"I'm quite bitter about all of this," Wood continued, "the penetration of drugs on the high school scene is a sad and tragic occurrence. But there is nothing we can do. We can warn the kids. We can implore them to keep away (from drugs and peddlers), but in the long run the final and ultimate decision is theirs."

One thing about Sam Vicchy he never forgets. Ten years ago the Belleville High swim coach that "some day we will beat Dearborn". The reply in this corner was "never".

"Never" arrived last Thursday as the Tigers dunked the perennial Class A state power.

"You know I'm so proud of these kids I don't know what to say," Coach Vicchy continued. "And there is something else I want this community to know — and that involved our principal Jim Richendollar.

Mr. Richendollar and his family were scheduled to go to Indiana, but he refused to go until he learned about the outcome of the meet.

"People care in this community and I know that you hear a lot about administrations and administrators not promoting an athletic program, but you won't find that around here," Vicchy added.

Glenn wastes Dawkins' 2 wins against Thurston

Despite a double victory by sophomore Greg Dawkins, Westland John Glenn found itself on the shortend of a 97-75 decision with Redford Thurston and its first setback in the Northwest Suburban Conference swim circuit.

And for Glenn Coach Jim Lawrence, it'll be out of the proverbial frying pan and into the fire for him and his Rockets who clash with pre-season title favorite North Farmington on Thursday.

They're (North) unbeaten in the league this season," Lawrence said, "and, if we're going to get back into this thing, then we're going to have to beat them."

Glenn is now 9-2 on the season.

Dawkins churned a 23.5 in winning the 50-yard freestyle, then returned to the pool and posted a 4:55.3 for the 500-yard freestyle.

Glenn's only other victory came in the 400-yard freestyle where Dawkins teamed with Gary McGue, Doug White, Rob Emerson for a 3:34.7 showing.

Wayne gives Monroe a jolt, 62-60

It was a first for a Steve Schwartz team, and the victory couldn't come at a better time.

"I have never before beaten a Monroe team," said Schwartz who is in his third year as Wayne Memorial's head coach. "And Friday night's 62-60 triumph was very sweet."

The victory provided Wayne with its ninth Great Lakes 8 Conference win in 13 starts and helped twice-defeated Fordson to move past Monroe (10-2) to the first place spot. Fordson has a 11-2 record and must beat Lincoln Park to clinch the championship.

Bill Hargrove's pair of three throws with four minutes left gave Wayne a 61-60 lead and Rick Rogers sank the front end of a one-and-one to seal the victory.

However, Monroe had a last chance shot which bounced off the rim at the buzzer.

Monroe unsuccessfully attempted to man-to-man defense Wayne in the first period as Darryl Jordan and Rogers staked the Zebras to a 17-14 lead by scoring seven and six of their points respectively in that period.

Monroe countered with their trump, Charlie Banks, a guard, who ignited the Trojans in the second period. Monroe made nine of 12 from the field in that period to go ahead, 36-32 at intermission.

"We felt if we could keep it close for three periods we would win this one," Schwartz later said. "And when we outscored them 16-14 in the third period to make it 50-48 for three, the kids said to me we can do it, coach."

Wayne's defense held Banks to four points in the last eight minutes and though it gave up 18 to John Frey, he was shut out in the crucial period.

Wayne also outmanned the hosts on the boards, 45-34, as Rogers collected nine and Jordan had eight. Paul Fluegel came off the bench and contributed eight points and seven rebounds.

Rogers tossed in 17 points, Wayne's highman, while Jordan and Reynolds also were in double figures with 11 and 12 points, respectively. Senior guard Greg Reynolds contributed 12 points.

Frey and Banks split 32 points for the losers.

"I think one of the key elements in our victory was that Monroe didn't get a point from their bench, while our players contributed 14 points and 11 rebounds coming off the bench," said Schwartz.

Wayne wraps up the conference season Friday night at Wyandotte, then gets a second shot at natural rival, Westland John Glenn on Tuesday.

Back on throne

After a year absence, Belleville South retained the title and the throne of the annual Belleville Junior High Swimming & Diving championships staged last week. South has won five of the six championships, yielding to natural rival, North, last year.

Belleville South regains swim throne

After an absence of one year Belleville South has reclaimed the Belleville Junior High Swimming & Diving Championship throne.

Coach John Stosick and his swimmers parlayed three first places and team depth into 339 points that helped give them swim supremacy over an impressive field of junior high teams at the sixth annual affair. Monroe, with an outstanding young swimmer, Dale Schultz, in their line-up, was second with 206 points.

Schultz set a meet record at 56.9 in winning the 100-yard butterfly, and he also captured the 500-yard freestyle in an excellent 5:11 showing.

South claimed the 50-yard freestyle thanks to a 24.7 by Greg Traskos, while diver Cari Baetens amassed 174.75 points for the gold and the freestyle relay team of Robert Robertson, Tammy Vicchy, Chris Gable and Brian Anguilm touched in first, beating archrivals, North, to the wire.

South had won the first four invitational titles before losing to North.

"Monroe had the quality swimmers," said Coach Stosick, "but we definitely had the depth especially in our freestyle events."

Romulus cagers looking good

Eagles whip DeLaSalle, Southwestern

Let the playoffs begin, Romulus High is ready.

"We have four players averaging in double figures for the season," said Romulus strategist Rod Hanna after his team humbled a strong Detroit DeLaSalle contingent, 67-52. "We're playing excellent defense. It looks like we're rounding into shape at the right time."

Romulus' district playoff fortunes must be found in Ypsilanti where the Eagles will find the host, Ypsi, Monroe, Belleville and Temperance Bedford among the competing teams. (Romulus got a look at the strong Ypsilanti quintet last night.)

The Eagles didn't waste any time with the DeLaSalle, a competitive team in the Parochial League. Leaping on their rivals 18-4 in the first period, Romulus had built up an insurmountable 42-28 halftime lead before Hanna turned loose his bench.

Darryl Lewis led the winners with 22 points while Dave Holifield and Dave Casey contributed 13 and 12 points, respectively. Sophomore guard Bobby Stewart accounted for 11 points.

In a Tuesday evening encounter, Romulus also turned back Detroit

Southwestern 79-73 as Lewis pumped in 29 points and Casey fired in 22 while Stewart had 16.

Southwestern grabbed the lead away from the visitors 34-29 after both teams put 16 points on the board for their first eight minutes. However, Romulus came back with a 28-point third period to cut into the Prospectors' lead 59-57 going into the finale.

The Eagles' balanced scoring attack and defense were just too much for the Prospectors who were gunned down 21-14 in the last eight minutes.

Casey, along with his 22 points, did a superb job on the boards, hauling down 17 rebounds and slapping away three shots. He also had the assignment of stopping Southwestern's all-state candidate, 6-4 Tyrone Jones. Although Jones got his share of points, he was ineffective on the boards where, according to Hanna, the game was won.

Romulus will be home Friday night to play before a Parents' Night, hosting Oak Park.

Glenn beats Redford Union at the free throw line

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

They that live by the sword, die by the sword.

That proverb has been fulfilled many times and it happened again Friday night when John Glenn defeated Redford Union, 74-63, on the strength of 22 free throws.

What makes it so significant is the fact that many visiting coaches have complained about the "poor officiating" at Redford Union this year.

Well, this time the shoe was on the other foot, or maybe we should say the foot was on the other foul line. Glenn players toed the charity stripe 33 times and sank 22 of them, to only 11 of 18 for the home Panther squad.

The Rockets' victory raised their record to 3-5 in the Northwest

Suburban League, tied with Redford Union for fourth place, and 8-9 overall for Coach Dan Henry's charges. Both teams fired in 26 field goals, so it was the free throws that made the difference.

"The Redford Union coach came over to me at halftime and asked me where I got these referees," Henry explained after the game. Henry said he replied, "Jim McIntyre sent them over."

whereupon the Panther coach turned and walked away.

McIntyre, Livonia Franklin's cage coach, is the one who publicly blasted the poor officiating at the Redford Union gym, thus the reference to him by Henry in jest.

But there was no "jest" in the way guard Ken Liedel played, he was "just" fantastic. The dead-eye senior guard dropped in eight long

ANP staffer is 3rd in national billiard

Bob Ameen, editorial staffer for the Belleville-Romulus area, Sunday finished third in the National Billiard News Open three-cushion billiard tournament in Oak Park, Mich.

A total of 30 players, including 10 of the finest cue artists in the nation, competed in the three-day event at the Cushion 'n' Cue.

A nationally-ranked billiard competitor, Ameen in 1971 won the U.S. three-cushion title. His other accomplishments include winning the Michigan championship twice.

During a billiard career that has spanned 28 years, Ameen has participated in approximately 250 tournaments throughout the nation.

The Oak Park tournament was won by "Boston Shorty" Johnson, acclaimed by many to be finest all-around pocket and three-cushion billiard player in the world.

Finishing second was George Ashby, Jacksonville, Ill., who is now 28. He competed against Ameen and other top players when he began his billiard career at the tender age of 14.

Ashby has won the European-affiliate version of the national championship and has competed in world tournament play abroad.

GC East upsets league-leading Franklin, 57-55

Coach McIntyre: 'We're not out of the wilderness'

With the title in their grasp, Livonia Franklin today finds itself placed in a "must" condition.

And Coach Jim McIntyre can blame Garden City East and a cold third period scoring streak for the predicament.

East upset Franklin Friday night 57-55, and the Livonia's two-game cushion deflated to one in the Northwest Suburban. If the score had been reversed and, with North Farmington and Redford Union both taking it on the chin last week, Franklin would have had the championship all sewed up.

Instead, the Patriots face Thurston on the home court Friday night and they must win to keep their slim margin.

"We're not out of the wilderness yet," Coach McIntyre said. "We had a chance to wrap it up at East, and missed the opportunity. Now we must beat Thurston or we could lose it all at North Farmington the following week." Franklin has a 6-2 conference mark, while North is 5-3 on the league year.

Franklin blew a 11-point halftime lead as the visitors failed to get a bucket the last four minutes of the third period. Up 11-10 after the initial quarter, the Patriots pulled away on the scoring strength of Jon McCarthy and Jeff Weber, who lifted the league leaders to a 33-22 advantage at intermission.

Outscored 16-10 in the third period, Franklin failed to stop the torrid shooting of 6-2 East forward Sean McGrath and John Topalian who paced the Panther attack.

McGrath scored 22 points and Topalian chipped in 19 to supply East with more than half of its points. McCarthy collected 12 and Weber, playing on a sprained ankle, sank 10 for the losers.

"It was our worst game of the season - we hit on 32 percent of our shots," McIntyre later said. "and I talked to their coach (East's Mike Riley) and he said that this was his team's best night this season."

What may have taken the sails out of Franklin was a 73-69 loss in overtime to Plymouth Salem earlier in the week. A 23-point last period forced the issue into the extra three minutes where Salem outscored their out-of-league rivals 8-4.

Howard Monk tossed in 28 points for Salem and Neu added 17, while McCarthy wound up with 23 for the Patriots and Przysiecki had 13. Doug White counted 12 points for the losers.

Salem was ahead after the first two periods 14-13 and 32-26. The Rocks made it a 49-42 ballgame before Franklin outscored them in the final eight minutes 23-16 to deadlock the game at 65-all.

field goals and 9-of-9 from the foul line to pace the Rockets' attack. "Kenny was just super," acknowledged Henry. "He was hitting 35-foot bombs. I started to tell him not to shoot from so far out, but everything he shot up went in, so I let him continue to shoot."

Liedel's nine points led Glenn as it trailed RU, 23-16, after one period. A pair of 6-4 forwards, Jerry Burk and Todd Hillis cracked Glenn's man-to-man defense for 10 points each in the first stanza. Glenn switched to a zone defense in the second period and managed a 17-10 edge to tie the game at 33-all at halftime.

Glenn continued running, constantly switching defenses. Their diamond-zone press to open the second half confused the Panthers and allowed Glenn to reel off the first 10 points of the second half and a 54-44 lead after three quarters. Glenn's accuracy at the foul line maintained its lead and a 21-19 last quarter margin. Burk's 24 points led RU, followed by Hillis' 16 and Rocco Rucinski's 10, all in the last quarter.

Forward Dave Ward and guard Tom Smith joined Liedel in double figures with 10 points each, and Ward also pulled down 12 rebounds in a fine board performance. "Dave Ward played an especially good second half and Tom Smith came off the bench and helped us against RU's zone defense," Henry said.

Glenn fired a fantastic 74 percent from the floor in the first half and 60 percent for the game. "Tony Dalimonte had a great defensive game and dished out seven assists," Henry pointed out.

Glenn was idle Tuesday night but returns to the court tomorrow night to host G.C. East in a league encounter.

Brock's 9-game win streak ends

With one clean stroke Tasee Freez cut Brock Homes' nine-game winning streak and grabbed command of the Berrington Division lead in the Wayne-Westland Over 30 Hockey League.

Tasee Freez fired in two third period goals to snap a 2-all deadlock and went on to win 4-2 in the key match-up of the week.

Mo Paquette led the scoring attack with a pair of tallies, while Terry Carley and Dave Milan each scored one apiece. Carley's season's total is 20 goals, six more than Jerry Robertson's. Both have 21 assists but Carley's 50 points gives him the distinction of holding down first place in scoring.

Layne Cardinal and Dallas Hayley scored for the losers.

Extra Point, meanwhile, fell from the division lead after a high-flying Johnson Carbonic trotted them 4-2 in their encounter last week. The Point led 2-0 early in the second period but couldn't handle their rivals in the late stages of the game.

A three-goal third period proved to be the difference in the contest. Jerry Robertson and Jim Thomas each scored two goals to account for all of the winner's scoring. Barry Anderson and Mark LaFond each scored for the losers.

Tim Vanderburgh's six shutout of the campaign highlighted Futurama's 8-0 trouncing of The Jock Shop. In the Jock Shop net was defenseman Ernie Kelm. When the Jock Shop goalie came up ill at gametime, Kelm was called upon to put on the pads. Although he gave it a gallant effort, Kelm couldn't stop the explosive league-leaders.

Rick Mullen, Dave Frankling, and John Castellanos each netted two goals with Tony Ianni and John Kunz also scoring.

Jack's Sports Center skated past the hapless Jake's Lounge, 4-1. Jake's scored the first goal but couldn't penetrate after that. Jack's came back with a pair of goals from Ray Erickson and one each from Conrad Madelano and Mike Adamson. Dave Cherry scored for Jake's.

Jack's sporting is back on the ice at 9 p.m., Sunday, taking on Brock's over in the Wayne Arena, while Jake's and Tasee Freez have the second game at 10:30 p.m.

In the meantime, Extra Point has an 8:30 date with The Jock Shop at the Westland Rink and at 10 p.m. Johnson will try to stop Futurama's title express.

performance, and I'm really pleased at finishing as high as we did."

Also satisfied with his wrestlers' over-all effort was Wayne's John Wood who pointed out that: "We wrestled very well and we're peaking as a team. We didn't get a real good draw and considering it, we came out fine."

"But someone will have to stop Redford," he added, in looking ahead at the regionals.

Wrestling will begin at Glenn 11 a.m. The finals are set for 7:30 p.m. Thirty-five teams will be represented at the regionals.

Goodies for TV Olympics

If you're not at Lake Placid, you are probably among the millions of television viewers watching the fun and games in the comfort of your own home. So settle in with a potful of freshly brewed Maxwell House coffee — and good things to eat — as you share the excitement of this year's Olympic Games.

Eating well, no matter how informal the situation, is more desirable than random "snacking," and the key is food that is wholesome and easy-to-serve. Meatball Wedges are ideal for Olympic Game watching, hearty sandwiches to please every appetite. Small meatballs simmered in a spicy barbecue sauce are served on split hero rolls, topped with raw onion slices and a side garnish of olives, carrot and celery sticks.

For television nibbling, bake up a batch of Peanut Butter Drop Cookies. They're crunchy and chewy with all the good flavor and texture of crisp whole wheat cereal flakes and peanut butter. They store well, taste better and are the perfect accompaniment to good cup of coffee.

Enjoy the refreshments, replenish the coffepot and share the fun with family and friends.

Meatball Wedges

- 1-1/2 pounds ground beef
- 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 to 3 tablespoons shortening
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 3/4 cup all-purpose barbecue sauce, any flavor

2 cups tomato juice

1/4 cup water

Combine beef, bread crumbs, milk, egg, salt and pepper; mix well. Shape into 1/2- to 3/4-inch balls. Brown well in shortening in large skillet; drain off any excess fat. Combine flour and barbecue sauce, blending until smooth. Add tomato juice and water; mix well and pour over meatballs. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer about 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve on split hero rolls garnished with onion slices, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Peanut Butter Drop Cookies

1-1/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon baking soda

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup butter or margarine

1 cup sugar

1 egg

1 teaspoon vanilla

1/2 cup creamy peanut butter

2 tablespoons milk

1-1/2 cups crisp whole wheat flakes

Mix flour with baking soda and salt. Cream butter. Gradually beat in sugar, blending well after each addition. Thoroughly beat in egg and vanilla. Blend in peanut butter. Add flour mixture alternately with milk, mixing thoroughly after each addition. Stir in cereal. Drop from teaspoon onto ungreased baking sheets. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes or until edges are browned. Cool slightly. Remove from baking sheets and finish cooling on racks. Makes about 4 dozen.

potpourri

BY LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

In a recent column, I mentioned that one of my least favorite phrases is "Please hold on" when I reach a number I dialed.

And I've since learned many of you are in accord. None of us, I'm sure, would mind being put "on hold" if those taking the calls weren't so prone to forget we ARE on that pending button.

In the latest issue of Good Housekeeping, Elizabeth L. Post (today's Emily on etiquette) answers someone's query on this very subject.

The writer asked, "When you are put on 'hold' by an operator or secretary — and then are left there — how long should you wait before hanging up?"

I really don't think it was necessary to call on an etiquette expert for that — it really just takes a bit of common sense. But in case you're a go-by-the-booker and are wondering, this was her reply:

"Nothing is more irritating than being put on 'hold' and being left there indefinitely. Those answering should reassure you at regular intervals — at least every minute — that your party is still unavailable. After getting back to you two or three times, the operator should ask if she can take a message or have your call returned. You should allow about five minutes (that long?) before saying you can't wait any longer. When you are left on hold indefinitely, with no word from anyone, you should feel free to hang up whenever your patience runs out."

The MOST irritating part of any call, for me, is getting a number and before you even get the chance to state your business, you are told to "hold on". Many times I've been calling long distance and when I DO get through I find the party I want isn't available and I've been waiting for naught.

Those of you responsible for incoming calls, please at LEAST hear what the caller wants and THEN push the hold button if necessary. And department store operators, you are the worst offenders!

HAS ANYONE PAID attention to the latest Weight Watcher commercial on TV? It makes me chuckle everytime — who on earth picks the "cast" for those gems? There's not a chubby or plump-o in the whole crowd!

SPELLING LESSON: Trouble with the word stationery-stationary? Never know which one to use when? Here's an easy "association trick" to help you remember. When referring to writing paper, tell yourself you'll also need envelopes; thus the stationery with an "e" in it. For use as something unmoveable, remember it's attached and choose the stationary with an "a" in it. Got that?

Having gotten through several books (some good, some not so) of late, I've a mini book review to pass on to those on the look-out for something to read (or avoid).

For the distaff side, "Class Reunion" by Rona Jaffe is definitely an interesting and easy-to-read novel and, though there's no deep suspense or mystery to any of it, it does keep you coming back for just one more chapter.

The story deals with four Radcliffe graduates — Daphne, Annabel, Emily and Chris — and the paths their lives take after college. Meeting at their 20th class reunion, they realize how differently things had been in the 50's as compared to the liberal 70's. Strictly girl-stuff, the four separate stories, which intertwine throughout the book, deal with feelings and occurrences familiar to most of us. Not for the Victorian romance buff who likes to be swept away from it all, though, since "Class Reunion" deals with reality — not the moonlight and roses and passionate, stolen kisses scene.

Irwin Shaw, the big name in authors when his "Rich Man, Poor Man" was turned into TV's popular mini-series, has a new book out — "Top of the Hill" — which is a big disappointment after the excellence of the afore-mentioned (the book, NOT the television version.)

And it's hard to believe that "T.O.T.H." has also been tagged for a session on the tube. (It will take a lot of padding to turn it into something worth viewing.) Dealing with a not too likeable central character, his big "thing" in life is living dangerously — free falling, hang gliding, skiing dangerous slopes, driving fast cars — rating them more important than a beautiful, caring wife.

Just plain didn't like it — shallow and disappointing for one of Shaw's talents.

And then there's "Sphinx" — If you're absolutely wild about Egyptology (and aren't we all?), this is for you. Otherwise, save your time! After something as unique and original as his "Coma", Robin Moore has come up with a pretty juvenile version of cops 'n robbers — Egyptian circuit. But — if you really dug Nancy Drew mystery stories when you were in your pre-teens, you might just LOVE "Sphinx" since the heroine comes across as just that — a latter-day Nancy Drew!

Having been closely involved with three murders, endlessly trailed and spied upon, physically attacked, and duped on several occasions, our heroine is never but never frightened, suspicious or dubious of her associations and activities in Cairo and Luxor. At least of 'Nan had the good sense to quiver and quake once in awhile.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY — Feb. 20, 1792: President George Washington signed the first postal act establishing the Federal Post Office (now why would I be interested in that?) Anyway, the rates were to be 6 cents for letters not exceeding a 30-mile distance; 8 cents for letters traveling from 30 to 60 miles; 10 cents for mail carried 60 to 100 miles; and 12 1/2 cents for that going from 100 to 150 miles.

So, you see, with inflation such as we face today, it ain't ALL bad! And on Feb. 20, 1933: The House of Representatives followed the lead of the Senate and voted for repeal of the Prohibition Amendment. (And I'll bet a lot of 'em "Drank to that!")

THE BOTTOM LINE: A successful man is one who earns more than his wife can spend; a successful woman is one who finds such a man.

Former Belleville resident

Bertha Gloyd to mark 100th birthday

Tomorrow, Feb. 21, will mark another milestone in the life of a former Belleville resident, Mrs. Bertha Gloyd, the climb to 100 years of age. The staff at Pine Knoll Convalescent Center in Taylor, where she resides, is planning a little celebration in her honor and among those expected to attend is the centenarian's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harold Gloyd of Allen Park.

Born in 1880 in the small village of Mayflower, Mich. (an area near Three Rivers), she lived as a child with her brother and sister in Morenci. On Dec. 30, 1903, she became the bride of Leo J. Gloyd of Sylvania, Ohio and to their union, one son, Harold, was born in Alverton, Ohio. The Gloyds operated a bakery in Constantine, Mich. for a short time and later Mr. Gloyd managed the power station for the electric railroad which ran in the Toledo-Alverton area. The couple's first home, the junior Mrs. Gloyd tells us, was in a remodeled box car.

Moving to Detroit, Mr. Gloyd worked as a fireman and then engineer for the Wabash Railroad (now Norfolk and Western). In 1939 a move was made to Belleville where the Gloyd's enjoyed a small farm after his retirement.

While living in Detroit Mrs. Gloyd was a member of Woodmere Methodist Church where she was a Sunday School teacher and member of the Women's Home Missionary Society. She joined the International Order of King's Daughters and Sons, founded in 1886, on April 11, 1912.

Making her home on East Huron River Drive, Belleville, from 1938 to 1975, Mrs. Gloyd was instrumental in organizing the Huron Valley Garden Club and was active in the United Methodist Women with whom she knitted leper bandages for the missions and socks for soldiers during World War II. Her pastimes were caring for her flower garden and writing poetry.

Besides her son, who died in 1974, her family tree includes two granddaughters and five great-grandchildren. Mrs. Louis (Nancy) Goeltzenleuchter makes her home in Stuttgart, Gy. with her husband who is serving with the U.S. Army, and two daughters, Heidi and Lucinda.

Recently returned from Army life in Germany with her husband, Edward J. (Pat) Brogan and three sons, David, Tim and Dennis, is a second granddaughter, Joyce Brogan.

Since her eyesight is failing, the junior Mrs. Gloyd suggests that those caring to send birthday cards address them to her care of Mrs. Harold Gloyd, 7653 Buckingham, Allen Park, Mi., 48101.

Jaycettes seeking recruits

The newly-formed Belleville-Van Buren Jaycettes report that response to the Feb. 6 news story in the Enterprise-Roman was very good, but there is always plenty of room for young women who want to serve the community.

Those interested in helping to build the fledgling chapter are invited to the group's next meeting on Feb. 28 at 7:30 p.m. at 8039 Marlow Street. For further information, call 697-2990 or 697-2648.

Topics for discussion will include a party for March 1, a portrait sale to families, the Jaycette's contribution to the Jaycee's annual membership night, support of the July 4th celebration and work with area activities.

Since the Jaycettes want their projects to fit the talents and interests of all members, this next meeting will also be a time to initiate and plan new activities.

EMU program

Nursing students help ready children for hospital stays

Children facing surgery at Beyer Memorial Hospital or St. Joseph Mercy Hospital need not enter either hospital without knowing what to expect, thanks to the Eastern Michigan University Department of Nursing Education.

The EMU nursing program sends junior and senior nursing students, with the doctor's and parents' permission, to the homes of children who will be admitted to a hospital soon for surgery.

According to Mary Louise Friedemann, lecturer in the EMU nursing program and coordinator of the home visit program, the nursing student gives the child a realistic and reassuring picture of life in the hospital.

"We find out what the child knows about his or her surgery, what the child can expect in the hospital and give the child a simple idea of anatomy," Friedemann said.

The nursing student also brings a suitcase filled with hospital equipment, such as masks, gowns and instruments, to let the child become familiar with them. In addition, the child can dress up as a doctor or nurse or play with doctor and nurse puppets.

"Children express themselves through play," Cheryl Schmidt, assistant nursing professor, said. "In that way, the nursing student can get an idea of the child's fears and help him or her cope with those fears."

The nursing students often are with the child during surgery and, if their clinical rotation permits, with the child afterwards.

After the child comes home from the hospital, the nursing student may visit the child, if the parents or doctor feel there is a need. If a child, for instance, is angered by the injections he or she received in the hospital, the child may be able to give an "injection" to a doll.

The home visits are set up by Schmidt. She calls the doctor of a child to be admitted for surgery to get permission to make a home visit. She then contacts the child's parents, and if willing, a visit is set up. EMU nursing students make about 100 visits to children during an academic year.

"There's a real need in the community for this type of program," Friedemann noted.

The nursing students see children of all ages, as well as teen-agers. The visit is geared according to age and the needs of the child or young adult.

For further information, contact the EMU Department of Nursing Education at 487-2310.

Wash, dust them

Clean up houseplants to aid looks, growth

Washing the dust off your large-leaved houseplants can improve both their looks and their growth. Polishing, however, can damage them.

Horticulturists at Michigan State

Carothers to attend Moose class

Alvin Carothers, secretary of Belleville Moose Lodge No. 934, will attend the Moose Administration School to be held at the Holiday Inn in North Aurora, Ill. on Feb. 23-24.

Serving as instructors will be the staff of the Supreme Secretary's office. Purpose of the school is to better acquaint secretaries with their duties and responsibilities.

University explain that a midwinter cleaning of dusty houseplants opens up leaf pores so that plants can breathe properly and removes dust-catching surface films that may be partially blocking light falling on the foliage. And, of course, it makes the plant look better.

Plant polishes, on the other hand — especially home remedies like milk, mayonnaise and olive oil — make the leaves shiny but may clog plant pores. They may also form a greasy film that traps dust and holds it on the leaves.

Even commercial plant polishes can cause these same problems, especially if they're applied frequently or used on both the upper and lower leaf surfaces.

As an alternative to polishing, firm, smooth leaves can be washed with a gentle spray of clean water or sponged with a soft cloth. African violets and other plants with hairy leaves, cacti and succulents should not be sprayed or washed but can be dusted with a soft brush.

Julie tells what an earthquake is like

If you've ever wondered what it's like to experience the tremor of an earthquake, the following letter written by one who did might enlighten you. Our writer, Julie Spring Tighe, is the granddaughter of Mrs. Katherine Spring of Belleville and the daughter of Herb and Beth Spring of Plymouth.

She and her husband, Tom, are stationed at the U.S. Air Force Base at Lajes Field, Terceira, Azores, Portugal, and were among those on the island when the quake occurred early in the year.

Julie writes her grandmother: "I was at work on the base when all at once the building started moving, the lights went out, and the alarms went off on all our transmitters, indicating that they were off the air. In as much as there are no windows in the building, we were in total darkness. It really was strange.

We ran and stood in a doorway and while we were standing there, books and tapes were falling all around us. We didn't have any serious damage, though, except for a couple of tapes we stepped on while walking around in the dark. I didn't even have a chance to get scared, we were so busy getting the station back on emergency power. I wasn't really frightened until later when I stopped to think about it, and when we had tremors afterwards.

Tom was at home when it happened as he was working nights. The power went off and he ran to a doorway, and watched the whole house move up and down, back and forth, and around. He could actually see it because it was daylight when it happened but I could only feel it in the dark. Where I was, when the lights go out, it's dark!

We didn't have any damage in the house except a few broken dishes, but our power was off for a week. We ran an extension cord across a field to a neighbor who had electricity and plugged in our freezer and refrigerator. All our friends and neighbors who didn't have power brought their food to our house and we kept it for them. At one time we had six families living out of our freezer.

No one was hurt and there was no damage on base but off base on the other side of the island, things were really bad. Fifty people were killed and over 300 injured. About 70 per cent of the buildings on the whole island were damaged.

It's a real mess! I went out one day and Tom went out several days on clean up crews. Most of the time we moved furniture and stuff. Basically, we were there to do whatever the Portuguese wanted us to do. One day Tom moved a load of chickens, not in crates either!

Once you got used to the destruction, it wasn't too bad. The Azoreans are a very proud people. They wouldn't let us work for nothing. With every load we had to stop for beer, vinchay (homemade wine) and snacks. One lady gave us a huge sack of homemade cookies and they were the best payment!"

Single parent assistance available in support group

A single parent support group seminar has been organized at Washtenaw Community College to which interested members of the community are invited to participate beginning Monday morning, Feb. 25. The seminar, open at no charge to participants, will meet for nine Monday mornings from 9:30 to 11 a.m. in the Adult Resources Center of the College at 4800 East Huron River Drive.

Marge Woodcox, facilitator of the group, explains that "This is a support group for parents rearing children alone. Emphasis will be on support for the parent. Topics to be discussed include time management, financial decisions, life goals and finding time for recreation and adult relationships. Both men and women are invited to participate as are those who are in the role of the non-custodial parent."

Pre-registration for the seminar is requested by phoning WCC staff at (313) 973-3528.

You are cordially invited . . .

... to take an active part this new decade in the success of your local newspapers, The Belleville Enterprise and The Romulus Roman, by submitting items of interest in your communities. be it New Boston, Sumpter, Van Buren or the aforementioned cities.

Births of your children, grandchildren or great-grandchildren (here or in other parts of the country) are always welcome news stories. Readers love hearing about babies, their christenings, birthday parties, accomplishments as they grow, their eventual graduations, scholarships, etc.

Not only cradle events, but engagements, weddings, bridal showers, pre-nuptial parties, housewarmings, family reunions ... the many golfing and bowling parties farewell and welcome back get-togethers, social club bashes ... first communions, wedding anniversaries, and all the goings on at any holiday season make for interesting reading in this Suburban Living section.

We love hearing about your college students and their achievements and what some of the BHS, HHS and RHS alumni are doing these days. Don't be shy; drop us a line and we'll see that your story gets into print.

The many men's and women's social, fraternal and service clubs are also requested to choose a "reporter" from their groups who will contact this office after each meeting, likewise with Boy and Girl Scout troops and clusters. Simply jot down the who, what, where, when and why of your organization and get it to us by our deadline — that's 2 p.m. each Thursday unless a holiday requires an earlier submission date.

Special forms are available here in the office for engagements, weddings, births and anniversaries. Just stop by and fill one out or give us a call and we'll see that you receive one by mail.

We are anxious to fill each individual's reading interests on the Suburban Living pages and, through each person's cooperation, we can make your local newspaper just that — one filled with LOCAL news.

Brief items, such as upcoming events for the "It's a Date" column and birth announcements, will be taken over the telephone; however, all other news must be submitted in written form. (Don't worry about story-form, we'll see to that.) We just do not have time to take lengthy items via the phone.

Those brief bits may be phoned in to 697-9191 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Drop your news off at 116 Fourth Street (we sit in the little block between the old and the new NBD banks — use the side entrance) or mail to the same address in Belleville, zip 48111.

Remember — the deadline is Thursday at 2 p.m. for anything that's to appear in the following week's issue.

We're looking forward to your R.S.V.P.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
IN RE: Amendment to Miscellaneous Matter 80-050

Local Rule IX (n) (1).
The United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit has requested that the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan make "findings of fact with respect to the promulgation of the changes in (Local Rule IX (n) (1)) and the notice thereto. Specific findings concerning the circumstances of the rule change and whether notice was given to the Bar are in order. As this issue may arise on many occasions, an evidentiary hearing should be held and a cross-section of the Eastern District Bar should be allowed to present their views."

It appears that the amendment to Local Rule IX (n) (1) decreasing the time to file a motion for rehearing from 20 days to 10 days was not promptly published in the appropriate newspapers, although the amendment was pasted into all copies of the Local Rules sold and distributed from the Clerk's Office after October 1977. An opportunity is given to members of the Bar to respond in writing to the Clerk not later than Friday, March 7, 1980, RE: Miscellaneous Matter 80-050 In Re: Amendment to Local Rule IX (n) (1), either in general concerning their awareness of notice or lack of notice of the amendment to Rule IX (n) (1), or in particular, any experience a member of the Bar may have had with the amendment which might be related to lack of adequate notice of the amendment.

Last year, nearly ten percent of all organized real estate transactions were handled by CENTURY 21. That means CENTURY 21 Neighborhood Professionals™ were taking those listings, making those sales. And, reaping the rewards a professional deserves!

Why? Because CENTURY 21 has distinct advantages. Like professional on-going training. Unique listing and selling tools (ours exclusively). Plus our multi-million dollar "pre-sold" image through advertising. People recognize the man or woman in the Gold Jacket as the Neighborhood Professional, who gets the job done.

So, if you'd like to have a big advantage in your real estate career, join us at our special Opportunity Day, February 23, 1980.

Who knows? If you qualify, there may be Gold in your future.

A 'fabulous show

Opry welcomes Paycheck

By GAIL JORGENSEN
Playtime Reviewer

Snow swirled around the marquee of the old State Wayne Theatre, and a new excitement sparkled in the cold night air.

Customers were holding onto their cowboy hats and scurrying into the theatre to see Johnny Paycheck and witness the grand opening of the Michigan Opry last Saturday night.

By 6:30 the house was over half full. Some old Johnny Cash records were playing, and people were already humming and drumming on their seats in anticipation.

At 6:45 the house was close to capacity. A band tuned up and tested its equipment, then disappeared. More anticipation.

At last, it seemed (though it was right on time at 7 p.m.), WCXI disc jockey Deano Day ambled into the spotlight to give the introductions. Two and a half hours later, we left with a new anticipation. Paycheck had given a blockbuster performance, and it looks like success for the Michigan Opry and Wayne.

As readers probably know, the Michigan Opry is the latest tenant of the former movie house on Michigan Ave., in Wayne. Recently organized by two young men named Lowell Beasley and Scott Price, the Opry plans to present big names in country music at least once a month, and feature local groups during off weeks.

Due to extensive publicity in newspapers and on the radio, customers showed up from "all over—Pontiac, Fraser, East Detroit," said Opry representative Price. "And we anticipate the customers coming back," he continued. "It was an impressive show."

For this first show, the Opry experimented with general admission, which they now feel was a mistake. People disliked the idea from the start; and to make matters worse, customers for the second show had to wait outside when the first show ran late.

The opening acts performed for 1½ hours, including some tasteless time-killing by Deano during set-ups. Paycheck's hour's worth brought the clock to 9:30, the time the second show was scheduled to start.

So there was no time for encores. We exited quickly out the back doors to find a huge line snaking all around the parking lot. It was an orderly line for the most part, though, and we assured them the show was worth standing in the cold.

Naturally scheduling adjustments are being made. Price said future showtimes will be 7 and 10 p.m. And of course, having reserved seating, people will have no need to stand in line.

Johnny Paycheck's show was fabulous. There's no other way to put it. He stepped on stage and raised his fist and stared out soberly a second—we all cheered. Then he strutted to the mike, barrel chested and tight legged, grinned and started to sing.

There was little talk, just music. Oh boy, was there music. Naturally "Take this Job and Shove It" was greeted with the most explosive applause, but the audience was excited by the entire set, which included ballads, honky-tonk, and gospel, as well as his popular protests. Johnny and the group moved perfectly from one type of song to another, and always kept the audience on the same wild wave length.

Paycheck's group—the West Texas Music Company—deserves a lot of the credit. They had a harmonica and a standing auto harp along with the guitar, drums and piano; and they jammed what was almost jazz into Johnny's country. Their arrangements were unique and downright complicated, and Johnny's strong, straightforward singing could handle every bit of it. The sound was fantastic. I could've listened all night.

If the Michigan Opry continues to deliver shows as powerful as Paycheck's, they deserve to succeed.

The Opry also hopes customers will return to see the local acts which opened Saturday's show. They will be featured regularly at the Opry.

First was Larry Lee Adkins and his band, "The Hanging Tree." At first their volume took me by surprise. The beat throbbed right through the seats and took some getting used to. Adkins has a strong, manly voice and manner and can sing any type of song well; but because of the loudness, the country rock numbers worked best Saturday. The piano backup on "Jailhouse Baby" and "Do Do Do" (where the piano sounded like a train) was especially exciting.

"The Borderline Express," the second local group, could have toned their percussion down a little too. Some sensitive singing—and a fiddler—were drummed out. As a backup band for singer Marsha Dee, however, the group was quite good.

Beasley is especially interested in using the Opry to promote Ms. Dee's career. She has a Voice with a capital V—a smooth, professional delivery, genuine emotion, and enough volume, at times, to make her mike seem superfluous. She sang the now-traditional ballads "Help me make it through the night," a folksy composition of her own ("New Old Lady"), and a country rock song, "I Need You." And she excelled in each style.

The next concerts will be Margo Smith on Feb. 23, and Merle Haggard is coming March 8. For information on tickets, call the box office at 721-2100.

"We believe the people of Wayne — and elsewhere — will enjoy the Opry," concluded Price. "And we accept to be nationally known eventually."

Playtime agrees.

Cranbrook surveys 'Whirlpools'

Increasing interest in celestial black holes has prompted Cranbrook Institute of Science to extend planetarium demonstrations called "Whirlpool of Darkness," about the bizarre phenomena, throughout February.

In addition, black hole gravitational demonstrations to complement the planetarium show will be given every Sunday in February from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Institute of Science physics hall.

The half-hour "Whirlpools of Darkness" includes a 17-minute segment that was produced by the Gates Planetarium in Denver and is narrated by Leonard Nimoy. It features a fast-paced series of slides and special effects that explains the strange objects.

In the gravitational demonstrations, physics intern Mel J. Drumm will simulate the effects of black holes, which are believed to be corpses of massive stars. By using the Institute's five-foot funnel, he will show how the force inevitably absorbs all objects within its field of gravity. The complex phenomenon of Einsteinian gravitation is graphically displayed when an object captured in the funnel spirals toward the apex.

Both demonstrations are included in regular museum admission of $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students and senior citizens.

For more information, call 645-3210.

Cranbrook Institute of Science, 500 Lone Pine Road, is the Detroit area's natural history museum, open daily except major holidays. It is a division of Cranbrook Educational Community.

At Hilberry

'Pygmalion' revived

George Bernard Shaw's biggest office success, "Pygmalion," officially opens at Wayne State University's Hilberry Theatre March 5, at 8:30 p.m., following previews Feb. 29 and March 1. It will run through May 2 as part of the Hilberry repertory.

"Pygmalion" was described by Shaw as a "romance" because it is a Cinderella story about an illiterate flower girl transformed into a "duchess." The plot centers around Henry Higgins, professor of phonetics, who makes a bet with his friend Colonel Pickering that he can pass off Eliza Doolittle, a "draggle-tailed guttersnipe," as a duchess in six months time at the ambassador's garden party. But Higgins encounters some surprises when his creation develops a mind and will of her own.

Shaw, a master of dialogue, savors the English language in "Pygmalion." Randolph Goodman writes that his lines are, "sharp, witty, concise, built with impeccable logic, surprise, shock, and are hilariously funny." "Although Shaw's verbal swordplay is dazzling, it is not all glitter; deep emotions very often shine through," adds Goodman.

"Pygmalion" was further popularized by the musical adaptation "My Fair Lady." Both the play and musical version have proved successful on stage and in the films.

The Hilberry cast is headed by Buckner Gibbs as Henry Higgins, Kristin Reeves-Beauchamp as Eliza Doolittle, and Peter Van Wagner as Colonel Pickering. Also in the cast are John Morgan Lund as Alfred Doolittle, Edith Taylor Hunter as Mrs. Higgins, and Andrew Barnicle as Freddy Eynsford Hill.

"Pygmalion" is directed by Margaret Spear, with scenery by Melinda Pacha, costumes by Jackie Durbin, and lighting by Reid Downey.

Tickets and information may be obtained by contacting the Wayne State University Theatre box office at Cass and Hancock, Detroit, or by calling 577-2972.

MOT makes 10th year

It isn't often that an opera company and an opera celebrate an anniversary together, but this fall both Michigan Opera Theatre and the opera "Of Mice and Men" will join in a tenth anniversary celebration.

In honor of this gala dual anniversary, Michigan Opera Theatre will mount a brand new production of the opera with the composer-librettist, himself, Carlisle Floyd, directing.

Based on the play and novel by John Steinbeck, "Of Mice and Men" will replace the previously scheduled "Lady Macbeth of Mstensk."

In commenting on the change, David DiChiera, MOT general director, noted that "it has long been one of Michigan Opera Theatre's major artistic concerns to produce, when possible, at least one important American work each season."

"It is our good fortune," DiChiera said, "that a change in Carlisle's schedule will allow us to fulfill this commitment."

MOT's upcoming lineup will open with Strauss' "Die Fledermaus", September 12 to September 19, followed by Floyd's "Of Mice and Men", September 26 to October 4, Mozart's "Don Giovanni", October 10 to October 18, and Verdi's "Rigoletto", October 24 to November 1. "Rigoletto", MOT's dual-language offering, will be sung in Italian on its opening Friday and the closing Saturday.

MOT will again perform all four operas during an eight-week fall season, from September 12 to November 1. However, opening nights will be changed from Monday to Friday evenings.

For season ticket information, call 963-3717.

"Pygmalion", George Bernard Shaw's popular comedy about an illiterate flower girl transformed into a duchess, officially opens at Wayne State University's Hilberry Theatre at 8:30 p.m. March 5. Appearing in the production will be Buckner Gibbs as Henry Higgins and Kristin Reeves-Beauchamp as Eliza Doolittle. For information and ticket reservations contact the Hilberry Theatre box office at 577-2972. The theater is located on the campus of Wayne State University at Cass and Hancock in Detroit.

MCTOS to host Lamay

Motor City Theatre Organ Society Inc. will present theatre organist Lionel Lamay at the console of the Barton Theatre Pipe Organ, together with precision dance group "The Sophisticats," at the Redford Theatre, 17360 Lahser Road at Grand River, Detroit, March 1 at 8 p.m.

Lionel, a dedicated teacher, with a background including supper club entertainment, the "Movies at the Redford" Series, and work for various other organizations, has so pleased audiences with his terrific organ styling that they have demanded a concert performance. For five years he was the director of the Meadow Brook Music Festival. His music education included study under Jack Nelson, formerly organist at the Fisher Theatre.

"The Sophisticats," under the direction of Miss Harriett, a former choreographer for the Miss America Pageant, will perform elaborate dance routines, including a 1940 Dance Party, all with organ accompaniment. The dancers are students from the Livonia and Redford area; some of them have danced at the Orange Bowl.

Tickets for the concert are available at $6, $5, and $4, and are reserved seating. Tickets may be ordered by mail by writing to the Redford Theatre, 17360 Lahser Road, Detroit 48219. A check or money order, payable to MCTOS, and a stamped, self-addressed envelope should be included with the order. Tickets also may be purchased at the Redford Theatre Box Office and at Masters Candies, 17340 Lahser.

The Motor City Theater Organ Society, a nonprofit corporation, is a group of more than 400 area residents. The purpose of the organization is to preserve and restore the theatre pipe organ, in its original setting, where possible, and to foster interest in its music.

Cranbrook: Open on Saturdays

Cranbrook Institute of Science natural history museum is now open to the public on Saturday mornings beginning at 10 a.m., announces director Robert Bowen.

The new hours, effective immediately, provide a full 12-hour schedule on Saturday.

Saturday morning museum use had previously been restricted to classes and group rentals. Those special uses will continue, but members and the general public can also browse in the museum halls during the added hours.

Planetarium schedule remains the same, with Saturday shows at 2, 3, 4 and 7:30 p.m.

Between 8:30 and 10 p.m. on Saturdays, half-hour telescope demonstrations are given. A demonstrator explains the operation of instruments and helps visitors use the telescope if the sky is clear. If cloudy skies prevent telescopic viewing, the demonstrator shows slides and explains the operation of the six-inch refracting telescope, its clock drive and dome with Lanphier shutter and window.

Planetarium and telescope demonstrations and Saturday films, which are shown every other week at 2:45 and 3:45 p.m., are free with museum admission of $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students and senior citizens.

For more information, call 645-3210. Cranbrook Institute of Science, 500 Lone Pine Road, is the Detroit area's natural history museum, open daily except major holidays. It is a division of Cranbrook Educational Community.

TV PEOPLE

Gene Tierney brings experience to TV role

Youthful members of the film company knew her by reputation and via the late, late movies. Veteran fans nostalgically recalled her from Hollywood's golden years, when Gene Tierney was a star of stars.

Not too many knew the details of her remarkable career, marked by the heights of success and the depths of illness and personal tragedy.

There was a hush on the sound stage when Miss Tierney arrived, to portray a ruthlessly powerful fashion editor in "Scruples," a six-hour miniseries based on the best-seller, to be presented on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday (Feb. 25, 26 and 28) on CBS.

Impeccably groomed, dark-haired, a bit matronly of figure, but her blue eyes and high cheekbones unchanged, Miss Tierney arrived in a slight flurry of attending people, including her hair stylist, makeup artist, wardrobe lady and husband of 20 years, Howard Lee.

She settled herself in a high director's chair for a scene in which she watches Barry Bostwick, as photographer Spider Elliott, taking pictures of ravishingly beautiful model, Melanie Adams, played by Kim Cattrall.

A slight misce spoiled the first take, but Miss Tierney's performance was flawless. The second take was a "print," and she walked offstage to join her husband. She sipped tea and glanced at her script.

That was the routine for the week. She gently declined press interviews, saying with a sigh, "I've talked to them all before. And it's all in my book. I don't have that much to add about myself."

She last acted in a television film, "Daughter of the Mind," with Ray Milland, her co-star of 18 years earlier in "Close to My Heart." She spent two years writing her autobiography, "Self-Portrait," which was published last year. She began appearing on talk shows to promote it, and says that gave her the confidence to accept the "Scruples" role of the ruthless fashion editor, Harriet Toppingham.

Now a grandmother, Miss Tierney has had a fulfilling career, encompassing 33 feature films and three Broadway plays. Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Henry Fonda, Tyrone Power and Humphrey Bogart were some of her leading men. She won an Oscar nomination for "Leave Her to Heaven" and starred in the classic, "Laura."

Her other films included "Tobacco Road," "Belle Starr," "A Bell for Adano," "The Left Hand of God" and "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir." In the 1950s mental illness forced her retirement, until she came back in 1962 for "Advise and Consent."

She was married to fashion designer Oleg Cassini when, in 1943, their daughter was born retarded.

Gene Tierney

Now she and her husband live quietly in Houston. In her book, she relates: "I traveled in a world that once was -- Hollywood of the war and immediate postwar years. And I existed in a world that never is -- the prison of the mind."

In exhibition

DIA past revealed

The artistic and historical past of the Detroit Institute of Arts will be revealed for the first time in an exhibition of objects and documents continuing through Thursday, Mar. 27.

The location is as unusual as the event: the third floor Director's Foyer of the Art Institute's North Wing.

The exhibition will be open Wednesdays and Thursdays, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"From the Inside: The Archives of The Detroit Institute of Arts 1883-1945" presents primary records illustrating museum history from the Art Loan exhibition to the close of William R. Valentine's directorship.

The sheer variety of documentary material to be displayed is impressive: Letters of directors, trustees, artists, benefactors, tradesmen, politicians; manuscripts; handwritten journals; registers; minutes; memoranda; checks; notes; telegrams; postcards; vintage photographs; architectural drawings; posters; portrait busts; portrait panels; painting; publications; memorabilia.

In conjunction with the show, a pictorial history of the museum is published — a large format, soft cover book with more than 50 illustrations and three historical essays. ($3.95 at Museum Shops.)

Both the exhibition and the book are a revelation of the personalities, conflicts and achievements that accompany the realization of a complex institution. And "From the Inside: The Archives of The Detroit Institute of Arts 1883-1945" is an appropriate look at the past as the museum anticipates its centennial in 1985.

Artist to discuss work

Natural materials and organic forms become unusual environmental pieces in the hands of Magdalena Abakanowicz. The fiber artist, a native of Warsaw, Poland, will discuss her organic structures at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 6, in the Detroit Institute of Arts lecture hall. Three of her works will be on view in the Modern Galleries from that evening through Mar. 30.

Abakanowicz played a major role in developing fiber as an art medium. She has exhibited internationally in major museums in Dusseldorf, Eindhoven, London, Oslo, Stockholm, Sydney, Warsaw and Zurich.

The artist's talk is sponsored by the Founders Society Friends of Modern Art with the Friends of Polish Art. Following her lecture, a reception in the museum's Modern Galleries will open the display, which includes:

"Head" (1974-75) a 38" high mixed fiber sculpture purchased by the Founders Society.

SOAP OPERA WEEK

Death and birth mark lives of 'OLTL' stars

By NANCY M. REICHARDT

NEW YORK — On January 17, veteran actress Barbara Britton lost her battle against cancer. Barbara, who portrayed Fran Gordon on "One Life to Live," died in her Manhattan apartment. Ms. Britton, who is perhaps best known for her some dozen years of Revlon cosmetic commercials on TV, is survived by her husband, a son and a daughter.

Willi Burke has taken over the role of Fran on "OLTL."

Erika Slezak (Viki Riley on "OLTL") proudly announced the birth of her first child, a son, who weighed in at 9 pounds and was born by the Caesarian method. Erika and her husband, actor Brian Davis, named their offspring Michael.

Robert Burton has been signed to the role of Dr. Peter Janssen on "OLTL," replacing the exciting Jeff Pomerantz. Burton, you may remember, portrayed Lee Ferguson on the now defunct "For Richer, For Poorer." When that show was canceled, he did a stint as Mel, the bartender who became involved with Doreen Aldrich on "The Doctors."

Another "FRFP" alumnus who came back to the small screen was Breon Gorman (Ex-Tessa Saxton). Ms. Gorman portrayed Allison Snowden, a reporter and old friend of Prince Stradella on "Search For Tomorrow."

Speaking of princes, just to set the record straight (and in answer to many letters and phone calls), Prince Albert on "Ryan's Hope" is not a real gorilla. There is an actor hidden under all that hair. The camel that appeared on the show several months ago, however, was real. "RH" did well by itself when Joan Fontaine was brought in to portray theatrical manager Page Williams.

Cast action on "The Edge of Night" includes the exit of Ann Williams, who was killed off as wealthy, domineering Margo Huntington Dorn. Ann's talents will be sorely missed by her fans, and we hope someone will pick her up for another soap role soon. Also missing from the screen for a couple of weeks was Joel Crothers (Miles Cavanaugh). While his character took time away from wife Nicole, Joel was in upstate New York signing the papers on the sale of his country home.

Grammy Awards at 22:
A brief scorecard

Kenny Rogers and Earth, Wind & Fire emerged as the top names for the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences (NARAS) 22nd Annual Grammy Awards—the world's most important music awards—which will be presented live from Los Angeles on CBS Wednesday, Feb. 27.

Rogers, who will host the telecast, has been nominated for five Grammy Awards and is associated with two additional nominated songs. Earth, Wind & Fire is up for four awards, while four other songs the group is associated with also received nominations.

The list of almost 350 final nominations is the largest in the academy's history and covers all forms of popular and classical recordings. Grammy Awards honor creative excellence in recording and performing, composing, arranging, engineering, producing and other specialized crafts.

Other top vote-getters were recordings by The Doobie Brothers, Rickie Lee Jones and Donna Summer, with five each, and Gloria Gaynor and Dionne Warwick with four apiece.

Rogers was nominated for Record of the Year for his single of "The Gambler." So were The Doobie Brothers for "What A Fool Believes," Earth, Wind & Fire for "After The Love Has Gone," Gloria Gaynor for "I Will Survive," and Barbra Streisand and Neil Diamond for their duet, "You Don't Bring Me Flowers."

An album by Rogers, also titled "The Gambler," was nominated for Album of the Year, along with The Doobie Brothers' "Minute By Minute." Donna Summer's

"Bad Girls," Billy Joel's "52nd Street" and Supertramp's "Breakfast in America."

Rickie Lee Jones and Robin Williams, of TV's "Mork and Mindy," were nominated for Best New Artist of the Year honors, along with The Blues Brothers of "Saturday Night Live" fame, Dire Straits and The Knack.

Nominations, made via the secret ballots of academy members, all of whom have been actively engaged in recording, cover 58 categories, although only 10 will be presented on the broadcast. These include pop, rock, rhythm & blues, disco, country, gospel, inspirational, Latin, comedy, children's spoken word, numerous crafts, as well as jazz and classical music. In the latter field, recordings by Colin Davis, whose album of Benjamin Britten's opera, "Peter Grimes" was cited three times, gained the highest number of nominations—five.

Most versatile of all nominees was Donna Summer,

John Dennis Johnston and Tracey Walter. (60 min.)

College: Is it crucial to an acting career?

By RUTH THOMPSON

Is a college education a help or a handicap to an aspiring actress?

Bo "10" Derek is a high school dropout who was startled when Tom Snyder told her in his recent television interview that many people have summed her up as "not very bright."

Her poised answer: "I think I'm bright. The people who know me think I'm bright." She continued that she had recently addressed an audience of college students and, in the give and take post-session, they told her they think her life experience—traveling the world since she was 17—is probably not just equivalent to time in the classroom but a superior learning experience.

Pia Zadora, currently seen on television as The Dubonnet Girl, did finish high school (with honors) but skipped college to get on with her career. She feels she missed nothing. Pia recalls being bored during her early days in a Catholic school until somebody found out she was one of the high IQ types who wasn't being properly motivated. In addition, both by osmosis and training, Pia had an extensive musical education before she went on the stage at age 8. Her father is a professional violinist; her aunt was an opera singer.

But there is another route to success, and it's through the halls of ivy.

Before Shelley Hack became Charlie's newest angel she was a big-money model and "the face" for a line of cosmetics. But before that she was well-schooled in archeology and holds a master's degree.

Marie-France Pisier, co-star of "Cousin, Cousine," half a dozen other movies and currently of the television miniseries, "Scuples," is qualified to practice law.

Tawny-maned Kathryn Walker, seen recently on PBS in John Cheever's "Oh Youth, Oh Beauty," had taken a master's degree at Harvard in Celtic studies when she had to make a decision. Should she work for her Ph.D. or did she want to try for a professional acting career? Certainly she was spending every spare minute at the little theater she and a few Cambridge cohorts founded one summer. Of course the acting won for Kathryn. Also for the cohorts, among them Stockard Channing (a Radcliffe grad) and John Lithgow.

It was a dozen years ago that Joanna Barnes, a graduate of Smith College, indicated that if the right roles didn't come along there were other things she could do. In fact, she had already written a well-received book on decorating and a novel.

Another Smith product is Cynthia Harris whom we've been seeing portraying the Duchess of Windsor in the Mobil Showcase presentation of "Edward and Mrs. Simpson." (One of Ms. Harris' classmates who did not opt for acting but is also successful is Gloria Steinem, the founder of Ms. magazine.)

Another Ivy League product is Bess Armstrong, and much was made of the fact that she was being cast against type for the CBS television movie, "11th Victim" a few months ago. The story took her through the seamy world of porn. Her own life story is much brighter. She went to the Bryn Mawr School for Girls and Brown University.

whose recordings were nominated in four different fields: pop, rock, rhythm & blues and disco.

Final ballots were recently mailed to all eligible Recording Academy members. Their votes, which will be tabulated in absolute secrecy by the international accounting firm of Deloitte, Haskins and Sells, will determine this year's Grammy Awards.

Henry Ford Museum stages 'Ways and Weft'

Visitors to Henry Ford Museum will experience the cloth-making process from fiber to fabric at the annual "Warp and Weft" exhibit and demonstration, opening Saturday through March 16.

Visitors may try their hand at some simple cloth-making steps while observing the work of experts on more complicated techniques.

It was only a short century ago that most American families had to be self-sufficient enough to make their own cloth from animal and vegetable fibers. Families raised their own sheep and grew their own flax to make wool and linen. The raw wool was sheared, washed with lye soap, bleached, carded, spun, dyed and woven or knitted. Even the youngest weren't spared from work. Children of 3 used hand cards to card wool and girls of 7 were taught to spin.

"Warp and Weft" reproduces that pioneer process. The exhibit takes its names from the fabric threads — warp (threads running lengthwise in a piece of cloth) and weft (threads interlaced through the warp).

Tapestry donated

Dr. and Mrs. George Kamperman Fund and an anonymous donor "Abakan 27," a sisal tapestry (1967) measuring 57" x 72", a recent gift to the museum's permanent collection by internationally-known designer Jack Lenor Larsen "Lion," a sisal tapestry (1969) 8½ feet high, lent by the American Craft Museum, New York.

Lecture admission at the door is $3 for the general public; Founders members $2; students with ID and senior citizens $1. (Use Farnsworth entrance.)

Abakanowicz' work is outstanding in the use of her chosen material, scope of the projects and powerful imagery. Born in Warsaw in 1930, she studied painting and sculpture in the Academy of Fine Arts in that city and maintains a studio there today. In 1961 she began to weave, revolutionizing the European tradition of flat wall tapestries and bringing the woven object from craft to fine art.

Visitors will be shown how to card wool and use a drop-spindle, an early spinning device to make thread, and may weave cloth on simple hand looms. The finished fabrics may be handled and examined so that visitors will be familiar with the textures.

The exhibit traces wool fiber from shearing to dyeing. Visitors may watch experienced spinners on 18th and 19 century spinning wheels and see how wool was dyed a century or more ago using natural dyes made from flowers, weeds, roots, barks and nutshells.

Similar steps in the production of linen from flax are also highlighted.

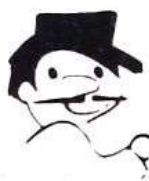

The various 18th and 19th century spinning wheels and looms are part of the Henry Ford

Museum and Greenfield Village permanent collections. Spinners and weavers from local guilds will explain and demonstrate the various steps in cloth-making. There is no charge for

"Warp and Weft" beyond the regular museum admission of $4.25 for adults, $2.25 for children 6 through 12, $3.50 for senior citizens and free for children under 6.
